SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A 16-year-old girl armed with a semi-automatic rifle and hundreds of rounds of ammunition opened fire at an elementary school today, killing two adults and wounding nine others, including six children.

Lt. John Mansfield confirmed two adults were killed, one officer was wounded and eight students wounded, with injuries ranging from serious to superficial.

The dead were the school's principal and custodian.

Share Profits – IWA

B.C. loggers and millworkers will go for a share-the-wealth pay increase of 14 to 20 per cent this spring, officials of the International Woodworkers of America said today.

They point to profit increases of as much as 100 per cent over the previous year. Meanwhile, the companies say they need this extra money to reinvest in the industry during 1979.

IWA locals will meet in March to hammer out a unified list of demands.

Wages will be the big issue and the demand will be in double digits.

And they almost certainly will demand the agreement be for one year only.

"We are just completing a two-year contract and we won't make that mistake again," said Lewis, who is spokesman for 1,900 Victoria-area woodworkers.

"Our wages went up 13 per cent (in the two years) but the cost of living was up 18 or 19 per cent. We fell behind by that six per cent."

His approach: recapture the six per cent from the past two years, plus nine per cent based on the expected cost of living increase in the coming year.

But added to that, he said, should be a share-the-wealth bonus of four or five per cent because companies are doing so well.

"Profits of the companies are up about 100 per cent. Our members are entitled to a share of those profits.

"Look at it this way. If we were getting paid in American dollars we would get an increase of at least 15 per cent more. The companies are getting their revenues in American dollars and we should get the equivalent amount in extra Canadian dollars."

Lewis said he believes Calvert Knudsen, president of MacMillan Bloedel, gets his salary in U.S. funds.

"In Victoria we sent a questionnaire to our members and the response was heavily in favor of a large pay increase this year. Our members are united on this issue. We will try to convince Mr. Thompson his local is being conservative

Arsonist Hits Belmont

Fire investigators found evidence of arson after a $100,000 fire at Belmont High School, 3067 Jacklin, early Sunday.

Colwood RCMP said a can thought to have contained an inflammable substance was found at the scene. It is is being analysed in a Vancouver laboratory.

A Langford fire department spokesman said the provincial fire marshal is investigating.

Internal alarm systems were ringing but appeared not to have been heard by nearby residents.

More sophisticated alarms were in the process of being installed when the fire occurred.

The lab was gutted and serious damage caused to the food lab. Two washrooms and a regular classroom adjoining also were damaged.

Belmont is like many schools in the province criticized recently by ICBC fire protection engineer Gordon Collins. The insurance corporation inspected 1,700 schools in an effort to reduce losses and the number of arson fires.

Collins said most are of wood frame construction, having been erected in the past 25 years in a province where wood products appear to be favored by architects.

The insurance corporation now requires all schools to have either a sprinkler system or automatic fire detector in every combustible area.

There are no sprinklers at Belmont, but there are both heat sensors and intruder alarms. These are to be wired into police and fire departments to give them their maximum value for fire and burglary protection.

Poly Foams Deadly Fire Hazard

TORONTO (CP) — Government officials say plastic foams are a fire hazard and it may be years before they have the knowledge and legislation to control its use.

Polyurethane and polystyrene is used in everything from coffee cups to toilet seats and armchair stuffing to home insulation.

National Research Council scientists in Ottawa say the plastic foam insulation, lining the walls of thousands of basement recreation rooms, is as much as 10 times more fire-prone than previously thought.

The federal hazardous products branch says about one-third of all mattresses sold in Canada contain the most dangerous combination of materials from a fire hazard point of view — untreated cotton batting and urethane.

In the first 10 months of 1978, 40 people died in Ontario in upholstered furniture fires, compared with 27 in all of 1977.

But government officials say it will be some years before there are regulations governing upholstered furniture, most of which is stuffed with polyurethane foam.

Que. Given One Year

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government has given Quebec a one-year deadline to hold its referendum or face a vote organized by Ottawa.

Justice Minister Marc Lalonde issued the warning Sunday, saying that if the Parti Quebecois government doesn't hold a referendum by next fall, "they have indicated they might want to do it in the spring of 1980.

"If they reach that time and start saying spring 1981, I think it would be understandable for the federal government to go and ask the people of Quebec what their views are."

Quebecers must vote on whether they want to stay in Canada before they go to the polls in the next provincial election, Lalonde told the Blainville-Deux Montagnes Liberal Association.

"It's impossible to indefinitely delay the resolution of this type of debate — the political instability cannot be allowed to continue indefinitely," he said.

"If we get to the spring of 1980 only to find the PQ still isn't ready, the federal government, at that time, would have to seriously consider going to the people of Quebec to ask what their views are, even if the Quebec government is afraid to ask them."

But Lalonde rejected a suggestion at the meeting that Ottawa ask all Canadians what they think of the possibility of Quebec independence, by including an extra ballot in the forthcoming federal election.

Trading Halted To Check Gold

An exchange spokesman said an engineer and staff from the exchange will prepare a report on the reserves.

The move came after Consolidated president Ken Sanders said last week his company had plans to develop an open pit mine on a huge gold deposit in the Charlottes.

Sanders estimated the site, discovered by a logger and part-time prospector from Nanaimo, had a potential gross of $2 billion.

But the exchange spokesman said that figure is meaningless unless the cost of development and extraction is also known.

He also criticized Sanders and the media for describing the increased claim-staking activity in the Charlottes as a gold rush. He said there is always a lot of activity in an area when a possibly important find is made.

Since last October, when Consolidated got rich results from a test drilling, 1,230 claim units have been staked in the area.

He said Sanders' statements had been highly promotional.

But Sanders said he doesn't regret going public on his company's plans.

"I stick to my guns," he said from his Vancouver office.

CHINA PLANNING VIETNAM BLITZ?

NEW YORK (AP) — Newsweek magazine quotes intelligence sources as saying China intends to launch an attack on Vietnam as punishment for that country's Cambodia invasion which ousted the Chinese-supported Pol Pot regime.

The magazine says China has amassed a force of 80,000 to 120,000 troops on the Vietnamese border.

The attack could bring in the Russians, who have massed troops on the Soviet-Chinese border, Newsweek says.

The Chinese could respond to a Soviet invasion with nuclear weapons but Peking's armed forces could not contain the Russians, the magazine adds.

The magazine quotes a U.S. source as saying: "We're just worried that an invasion of Vietnam might take place after the visit" of Chinese Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping to the U.S. "since it would look like we gave them the green light."

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The wife of a Canadian MP was among a number of patients treated with LSD by a Montreal psychiatrist who is alleged to have received some funds from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Val Orlikow, wife of Winnipeg North NDP MP David Orlikow, maintains she was given no explanation about the effects of the drug when she received it while undergoing treatment for mental depression during the 1950s at the Allan Memorial Institute.

On 14 occasions she was given intravenous injections of the hallucinogen by the late Dr. D. Ewen Cameron, head of the institute, says John Marks in his new book The Search for the Manchurian Candidate.

Marks is the co-author of the book The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence. Cameron headed the Montreal institute during 1943-64 and died in 1967.

Cameron's work on behavior modification was funded in part by a grant from the Society for the Investigation of Human Ecology, which Marks describes as a CIA front.

Details of her treatment were confirmed by Orlikow, who was a Winnipeg city alderman when his wife began receiving the drug injections. She went to the Montreal institute as a voluntary patient in late 1956.

Cameron administered the injections personally. She then was left alone in a room with a tape recording of her last session with the psychiatrist and ordered to make notes on the recording and her feelings.

Mrs. Orlikow hated the treatment, which sometimes was administered three or four times a week, the author says. She finally insisted that it be stopped.

In his book, which exposes alleged secret CIA experiments in mind control, Marks says Cameron began receiving funds from the CIA through the human ecology society in 1957.

Marks says Cameron may not have known that the CIA was the ultimate source of the money, about $19,000 a year.

Orlikow disagrees.

"It's very unlikely he didn't know," the NDP legislator said in a telephone interview from Winnipeg. "Certainly, in retrospect, it seems that my wife was part of a series of experiments."

Marks says that in any event, the CIA officials "knew exactly what they were paying for."

The CIA at the time was worried that the Chinese and

No Room in Church for Politics, Marx: Pope

Times News Services

MEXICO CITY — Pope John Paul II laid it on the line Sunday to political activists in the church: There is no room in his church's teaching for Marxist analysis, ideology or political action.

In his speech to the first working session of the third Latin American bishops' conference, the pope accused some theologians of "re-reading" the gospel stories of Jesus "to show Jesus as politically committed, as one who fought against Roman oppression and the authorities, and also as one involved in the class struggle."

"This idea of Christ as a political figure, a revolutionary, as the subversive man from Nazareth, does not tally with the church's teaching," the pope said.

The speech was considered one of the pope's most important in his 105-day reign and was interpreted as setting the course for the church in the future, particularly in terms of demonstrating John Paul's attitude toward the so-called "liberation theology," already deeply rooted in Latin America but spreading to other parts of the world as well.

Instead, he called for "a correct Christian idea of liberation," centred on "liberation made up of reconciliation and forgiveness of God ... liberation that in the framework of the church's proper mission is not reduced to the simple and narrow economic, political, social demands of any strategy, practice or short-term solution."

Earlier Sunday, some listeners hissed when he told a stadium crowd of 200,000 to remember Christ was not a political revolutionary and made a passing reference to the "simple joys of the poor."

At a mass that opened the bishops conference, the pope spoke of the need to remedy the poverty of Latin America, particularly for the sake of the children.

Then he added that in the midst of suffering there are still "the simple joys of the poor, in the humble shacks of the peasants, the Indians, the immigrants."

At the reference to "joys of the poor," an audible hiss ran through the huge crowd gathered on a football field.

The pontiff also urged the bishops to fight goverment policies he called harmful to families, mentioning divorce and birth control.

Police estimated that more than 10 million Mexicans turned out to cheer and wave as the pope travelled in an open car from Mexico City to Puebla, 120 kilometres south of the capital.

Today, after a visit to a children's hospital in Mexico city, the Pope was to fly to an Indian village outside Oaxaca to address 500,000 Indians from about 30 tribes in the mountains of southern Mexico and northern Guatemala.

Stabbed Mountie Gets Man

MONTREAL (CP) — An RCMP officer, stabbed from behind with a kitchen knife on a west-end street, had enough strength left to chase and overcome his assailant, municipal police reported Sunday.

Constable Jeannot Roussel, 28, is in satisfactory condition in hospital with a stab wound and punctured lung, while his 20-year-old assailant is being held for a court appearance. Specific charges have not yet been laid.

A Montreal police spokesman gave the following account:

Roussel, a member of the RCMP narcotics squad, was leaving his office about 2 a.m. Saturday dressed in street clothes when he walked by a young man who mumbled something.

The Mountie asked in French if the man was talking to him, and the man responded: "Do you speak English?"

Thinking the man was a crank who had been talking to himself, Roussel turned away and was stabbed from behind.

Despite his injury, the officer chased the man about 300 feet, took away a kitchen knife with a five-inch blade and kept the man under control until municipal police arrived, responding to a call from a local resident.

500 Chant at Teng

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man and a woman were arrested today after they shouted protests at Chinese Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping during an outdoor welcoming ceremony for him at the White House.

Outside the White House grounds, an estimated 500 demonstrators waved signs and chanted slogans in protest of Teng's visit.

The two arrested—Sonia Ransom, 26, of Seattle, Wash., and Keith Kozimoto, 28, of New York City—were led away by Secret Service agents and turned over to District of Columbia police.

A White House spokesman said they were charged with disorderly conduct.

The Secret Service said both carried press credentials. Officials said they are trying to determine how the two got the credentials.

As President Carter was giving his welcoming remarks, the woman about three metres from the podium, screamed at Teng: "Teng Hsiao-ping, you are a murderer or a traitor."

Walter Carver, a spokesman for the Revolutionary Communist Party, a Maoist group which opposes Teng's opening to the West, said his organization was responsible for disrupting the ceremony.

In Washington, meanwhile, President Carter welcomed Teng to the White House today with the promise of "a common journey" as they began talks on bolstering the new relationship between the United States and China.

Teng, reading his speech in Chinese, responded: "We share the sense of being on an historic mission. Sino-U.S. relations are at a new beginning and the world is at a new turning point."

Bakhtiar Drops Paris Trip, Says Khomeini Can Return

Times News Services

TEHRAN — Premier Shahpour Bakhtiar today called off scheduled peace talks in Paris with exiled opposition leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini but said Khomeini can return to Iran "any time he wishes." Airline sources said Tehran's airport will reopen at dawn Tuesday.

In Paris, Khomeini announced he will return at his own risk as soon as the airports are open. His aides said they are ready to leave at a moment's notice.

"We hope to leave tonight depending on the latest order regarding the airports," said one.

Tehran's international airport was shut down Thursday, shortly after Khomeini announced his intention to return from his 15-year exile and seize power from Bakhtiar.

Enraged crowds demanding Khomeini's return rampaged through downtown Tehran today burning down cinemas and liquor stores in defiance of army gunfire.

An unspecified number of demonstrators were shot and taken to city hospitals already packed with victims of similar shooting incidents Sunday, in which 30 to 40 persons were killed and hundreds wounded.

The clashes erupted a few hours after Premier Bakhtiar agreed to allow the exiled Khomeini to return home.

He told reporters he could not offer his resignation as the price for talks with Khomeini on a possible end to 14 months of strife that politicians warned could result soon in civil war.

There was still no word from a special reception committee when Khomeini's arrival was expected, opposition sources said.

Bakhtiar said "Ayatollah Khomeini can return any time he wishes" in what appeared to be a drastic revision of his earlier stand that the opposition leader's return should be delayed.

But the embattled premier threw his full support behind army efforts to prevent "misuse of freedom" by his opponents.

Several hundred demonstrators beat up an Iranian army general and smashed his car in front of Tehran university after some demonstrators identified him as the general who ordered troops to fire on demonstrators Sunday.

Demonstrators marched through the capital today shouting "death to Bakhtiar," and demanding the return of Khomeini. They swarmed through the streets setting fire to three movie houses, four liquor stores, one brewery and the town's largest nightclub.

Meanwhile, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, forced by bloody rioting to leave Iran, plans to remain in Morocco for at least three weeks, a close aide said Sunday.

Ardeshir Zahedi, who is still listed as the Iranian ambassador to the United States despite his dismissal by the new government in Tehran, arrived in Marrakech on Saturday with the shah's four children and mother-in-law on a flight from Texas.

He said the shah has not decided if he will leave later for another country.

the weather

A front which moved across the north coast early this morning will move across the remainder of B.C. today and Tuesday. While the Charlottes received mostly rain, the northern mainland areas received snow. The snow will gradually spread across the northern half of B.C. today and to southern areas of the interior by Tuesday morning. For the south coast rain will be mainly confined to the outer coast while the inner coast can expect mainly snow beginning later today. Some clearing will follow the passage of this front. However, most areas can expect occasional rain or snow showers.

Bus Drivers Make Quebecers Walk

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebecers slogged, hitchhiked, took taxis or pooled cars to get to work today as city bus drivers began a strike union officials warned could be long.

Contract talks between 507 drivers affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions and the Quebec Urban Community Transit Commission broke down over the weekend.

The strike begins just three days before the start of the annual Quebec Winter Carnival, which usually draws thousands of tourists to the city.

The union is demanding a reduction of the work day to 7½ hours from the present eight and an end to the hiring of part-time drivers.

More than 120,000 people, including 20,000 schoolchildren, normally use the bus system. The regional school commission has warned it cannot organize an alternative service.

YOUTH TERROR FEAR

TORONTO (CP) — A revolutionary movement on the scale of terrorism in Italy could be the result of rising unemployment among Canadian youth, a Toronto psychiatrist says.

Dr. Saul Levine, a University of Toronto psychiatrist studying youth unemployment in North America, said it is not coincidence that Italy has one of the highest youth, unemployment rates in the Western world "plus the fiercest terrorism led by the 'elders' of the youth population.

"When enough youth drop out of school early or graduate only to find there are no jobs available for them, a growing proportion will emerge in the population with no vested interest in society or in perpetuating the values the rest of us hold dear," Dr. Levine said in an interview.

The comments of the Montreal-born psychiatrist follow his study during the last six months of the psychological and social effects of youth unemployment in North America.

Dr. Levine, whose work is financed by the university and the Hospital for Sick Children, is to present a review paper based on the study to the American Orthopsychiatric Association in Washington in April.

Marksmen Shoot over Hostages, Kill Tokyo Armed Bank Robber

TOKYO (AP) — Picking him off as he read a newspaper, six Japanese sharpshooters fatally wounded an armed bandit Sunday despite his protective cover of 25 hostages in a bank in Osaka, Japan, officials said. Four persons were killed by the gunman when the bank siege began Friday.

"I too was reading a newspaper and suddenly heard the shooting sound and then raised my head and saw the gunman with his face all bloody," one hostage told a news conference. "He then fell on the floor."

Nine hours after the shooting, a spokesman said the gunman died in hospital in Osaka, 400 kilometres southwest of here. He had been hit by two of eight shots fired at him.

The 25 hostages, all employees of the bank, were reported safe. Draped in blankets, some were taken from the bank on stretchers or carried out by police.

Police decided to storm the bank nearly 42 hours after the man, masked and carrying a shotgun, had entered the building, shot and killed four persons, took 38 others hostage and demanded that the Japanese equivalent of $253,000 be stuffed into his red knapsack.

More than 500 police circled the bank Friday afternoon, shortly after the siege began.

Thirteen of the original group of hostages were released during the standoff. Three of them were wounded.

The gunman was identified as 30-year-old Akiyoshi Umekawa, an unemployed resident of Osaka with a criminal record.

Police said the six sharpshooters manoeuvred to within about 10 metres of the gunman behind barricades he had thrown up. The gunman was reading a newspaper in the bank manager's chair in a corner of the room, surrounded by hostages.

Police yelled to the hostages to drop down and the room exploded with the sound of bullets. Police said the gunman, who held a gun in his right hand, had no chance to shoot back.

The gunman had not extended his demands after asking for the money and remained mostly uncommunicative, giving no explanation for his action, police said.

Basques Trained By IRA?

MADRID (Reuter) — Guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army are actively assisting the Basque separatist group ETA in its fight against the Madrid government, a leading Spanish newspaper reported Sunday.

The Madrid daily El Pais quoted reliable sources as saying the two groups exchanged men, arms and explosives and trained together in an unspecified Middle East country.

ETA killed 62 people in Spain last year in its fight for an independent, Marxist Basque state. It has also claimed responsibility for nine killings so far this year.

El Pais said British intelligence has detected the presence of a number of IRA men in the Basque country in recent months and believes they had participated in various attacks in the region.

It is also understood that ETA guerrillas have been detected in England and Northern Ireland, El Pais said.

The IRA wants a united, independent Ireland.

Meanwhile, three Spanish civil guards were wounded, one severely, when a bomb exploded beside their vehicle near this northern Basque town today, police said.

Callaghan Meets TUC

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister James Callaghan called leaders of the Trades Union Congress (TUC) to see him today, trying to defuse the latest British wage revolt and shore up his Labor government's waning prestige in an election year.

In a winter of industrial discontent, auto workers, railway workers and truck drivers have gone on strike so far. The truckers remain off the job after 21 days, starving factories of supplies and cutting exports by one-third.

Sporadic action across the country was also continued by low-paid workers seeking a £60 ($138) weekly minimum, seen as too much by the government.

They include ambulancemen, hospital staff, school cooks, garbage collectors, gravediggers, and the men who sand icy roads.

The truckers' strike may end after talks early this week, but the men will be settling for increases of 15 to 22 per cent.

More groups are making big demands, including about 182,000 teachers who seek a 35-per-cent increase.

The coal miners want 10 per cent. A 1973 pit strike brought down the Conservative government of Edward Heath, who had tried to legislate pay increases in a bid to curb an earlier wages explosion.

Callaghan must hold an election by this Nov. 15 and he fears that public wrath over higher inflation, which would follow big pay settlements, will defeat his Labor party government.

Labor claims special links with the trade unions and, after Heath's fall, it enacted laws to widen their power, which they rewarded by making only modest wage demands from 1975 to 1978.

Canadian Student Hides In Fear of PLO Attack

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — A Canadian student alleged by Palestinian guerrillas to have been involved in the assassination of one of their leaders, disappeared from his home near Tel Aviv on Sunday with his wife and son.

Friends said Robert Kolberg, 25, of Vancouver, who has been living in Israel for the last five years, was in hiding for fear of reprisals by Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) sympathizers.

Teachers and fellow university students dismissed the idea that he was implicated in the assassination.

"He has been attending classes for the past month continuously, without interruption," a fellow student said.

His teacher said he was "certainly not a James Bond type."

"He is much more a family man."

Canadian embassy sources said as far as they knew Kolberg had not left Israel in recent years and his passport had not been reported stolen.

Officials of the PLO in Beirut said a man with Kolberg's name and passport had taken part in the assassination of Ali Hassan Salameh, alleged to have masterminded the massacre of 11 Israeli athletes at the Olympic Games in Munich in 1972.

In Vancouver, Kolberg's father said his son has not disappeared and that he plans to remain in Israel.

"When he gets his degree, then he'll come home," Al Kolberg said.

He said his son has made himself available to the Canadian Embassy on several occasions and the external affairs department knows his whereabouts. He refused to say where his son was staying.

The younger Kolberg's passport could have been forged anytime, his father said, because he has had to surrender it on several different occasions.

"As I said before, nobody would use their own passports if they were going to do something like that."

Kolberg said he understood that two persons were arrested in Tel Aviv on the weekend for stealing passports and "that should settle this thing."

"We don't want any more notoriety . . . it's just going to cause more problems."

Terrorists Kill Milan Prosecutor

MILAN (AP) — A carload of terrorists killed Emilio Alessandrini, Milan's assistant state attorney, as he was driving to his office in downtown Milan today, police reported.

Alessandrini, 39, was the first major official killed by terrorists this year. He had prosecuted a number of extremists of both the right and left wing and had investigated the Red Brigades, Italy's most-active terror gang.

An hour after he was killed, an anonymous telephone caller told a newspaper the killers were members of Front Line, a leftist guerrilla organization that claimed responsibility for killing a Turin prison guard earlier this month.

Authorities have linked the group with the Red Brigades, who kidnapped and killed former premier Aldo Moro last spring.

UN Troops Put on Alert

Associated Press

United Nations peacekeeping troops were ordered on full alert in southern Lebanon today after a bomb killed two Israelis and wounded 34 in an Israeli coastal resort and Israel's Christian allies in southeast Lebanon shelled a Norwegian UN force.

There was no immediate word on what led to the heavy shelling by Lebanese Christian militiamen Friday and Saturday. A UN spokesman in Beirut said several of the the Norwegians were wounded, but their units did not return the fire.

UN troops were sent into southern Lebanon last year to replace an Israeli invasion force that occupied 1,350 square kilometres in reprisal for a Palestinian raid near Tel Aviv in which 35 Israelis were killed. But Israel turned over some positions to Christian militiamen armed by it. Israel and the Christians say the UN troops have been unable to keep Palestinian guerrillas from returning to the border area.

Two guerrilla groups, the Palestine Liberation Organization and the more radical Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, claimed responsibility for the bomb Sunday in Netanya, 16 kilometres north of Tel Aviv.

Israeli police rounded up several Arab suspects and took others into custody to protect them from enraged Israelis. Palestinian-Israeli violence has increased steadily since Israel and Egypt drafted their peace framework at Camp David last September.

Open and Shut Case

Last year Victoria city council ensnarled itself in a debate over Sunday store openings and after some hemming and hawing, sensibly decided to drop the issue as too complicated for easy resolution by a city bylaw. There were just too many anomalies to resolve. The conflict between some people who want everything shut down on Sunday and others with a more Liberal attitude was left to the marketplace to work out.

The number of retail establishments opening on Sundays in Victoria and more hardware and home improvement stores are serving the public a few hours on Sunday. It is hard to find complaints that this is unseemly or scandalous. Live and let live, appears to be most people's attitude towards the question.

It is a credit to the good sense of Victoria's politicians and residents that Sunday opening has been left to store owners and the public to regulate. Generally, the problem has been worked out with a minimum of trouble.

For a peek at what could have happened if common sense had not prevailed (and to immunize us against any further fooling around with Sunday store hours), Victorians need look no farther than Vancouver. The province's largest and most sophisticated city has handled the issue in surprisingly clumsy fashion; by comparison it makes quaint and stodgy Victoria seem a model of municipal administration.

Led by Mayor Jack Volrich, Vancouver city council last year decided to crack down on stores which opened on Sunday, in pursuit of business which had fled to the suburbs where supermarkets and furniture outlets and some department stores have been open for business on Sunday for years.

City council got tough, threatening to suspend the business licences of stores open on Sundays (although unofficial exceptions were made for the remodeled Gastown area and Chinatown, where Sunday is the busiest day of the week).

And for some six weeks, certain stores voluntarily complied with council's wishes. But after seeing other businesses remain open in defiance of Vancouver council's orders — and without any punitive action by city fathers — the good citizen merchants said the heck with it and opened their doors again. Sunday last week was business as usual for Vancouver, although by no means is it a riproaring, wide open town on the Lord's Day.

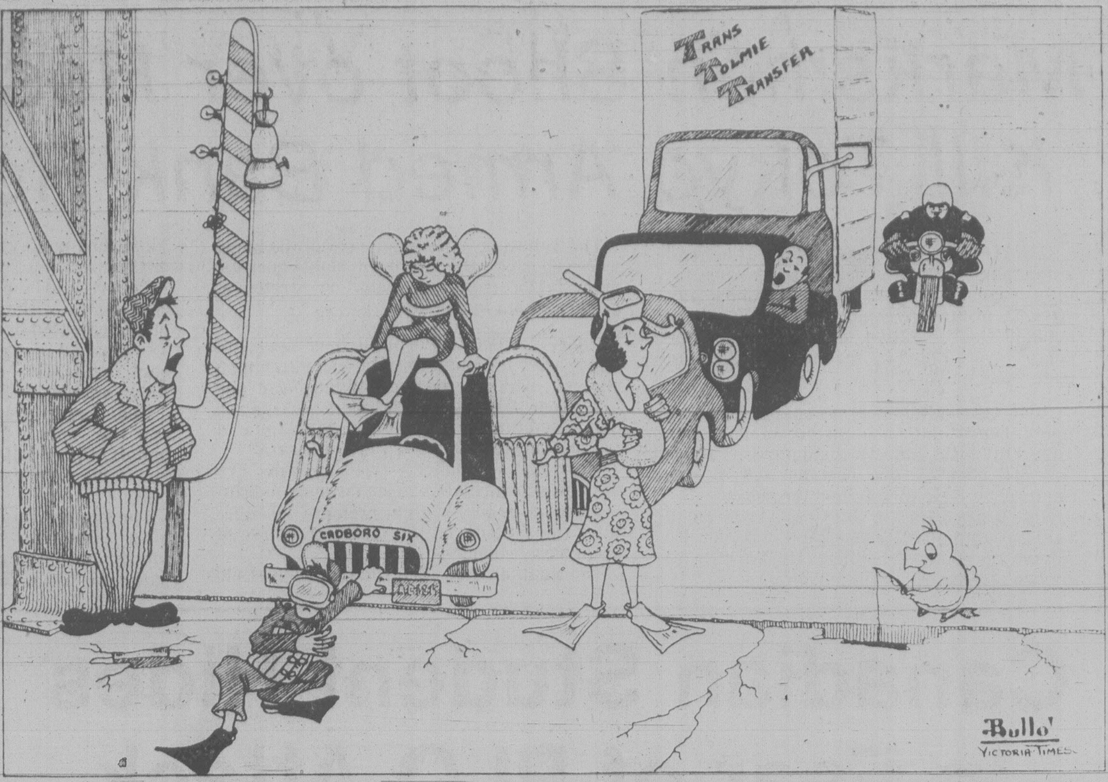
"We decided to reopen when the city didn't prosecute anyone during the weeks we were closed. So we thought 'Why should all those other stores get all the business?'" said a spokesman for Wosk's, a big retailer of appliances.

On Tuesday, city council plans a full dress public hearing on Sunday closing, hoping it can find some way out of the mess it ran headlong into last fall. Attorney-General Garde Gardom sensibly won't let the mayor (his former law partner, incidentally) prosecute under the federal Lord's Day Act.

This "archaic, unworkable and ineffective statute" is in need of a drastic overhaul before any eager litigants can be let near it, according to Gardom. The law has some strange quirks. Excursions solely for "amusement or pleasure" which charge a fee and the sale of foreign newspapers on Sunday are prohibited, although clearing ice and snow from railway tracks, the manufacture of maple syrup and unavoidable work in producing the regular editions of Monday's newspaper are not.

Ottawa has more important work in progress at present than revising an old and neglected law, so the attorney-general's department is reviewing the legislation in light of modern needs. Before that task is completed, and until a provincial policy is drafted, no legal action will be taken against those who technically violate the law on the sabbath.

That is a sensible compromise, one that was eventually adopted in Victoria. Why the political minds of bigger and brighter Vancouver haven't reached this same conclusion yet suggests that the reports of their great worldly wisdom and sophistication in all matters have been greatly exaggerated.



" . . . while the city acknowledges that repairs are required, believe me ma'am, the safety of the bridge is not in doubt . . . "

Task Force Splits Us Up

OTTAWA — The Canadian Unity Task Force report amounts to a huge gamble — that Canadians, provided we first draw apart from each other, will be able to build between us, in the report's title, A Future Together.

"There is a greater danger to national unity in trying to suppress our differences than in giving expression to them," co-chairman John Robarts, former premier of Ontario, said at a press conference.

To allow Canadians to express their differences, the task force would shift power massively to the provinces. Each province would exercise jurisdiction, exclusive or "primary," over everything from culture to communications, including multiculturalism and over "provincial economic development," environmental protection, natural resources including fisheries, social services, health, immigration, consumer and corporate affairs. Beyond these, provincial governments would be involved in foreign affairs and foreign trade, and would have "equal access" with Ottawa to income and corporation taxes.

To most Canadians most of the time, therefore, provincial governments would become the only governments that deal with them directly, except when they lose a passport or a Carribean beach, or try to send a letter through the post office.

No Overlord in Ottawa

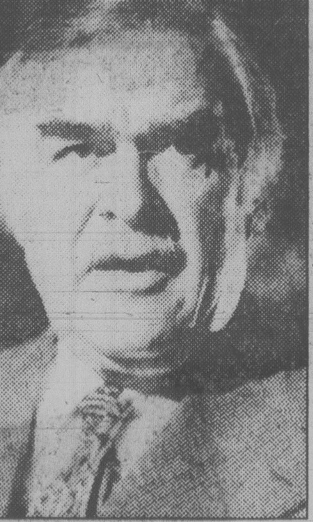
As decisive to this "restructured" Canada, provincial governments would become sovereign within their own greatly expanded jurisdictions. Federal legislation or spending that affected provincial interests would be subject to veto by a new 60-member Council of the Federation appointed by Ottawa and the provinces to replace the Senate. In contrast, the provinces, within their jurisdiction, would be freed of federal overlordship.

Canadians thus would draw far apart. New national initiatives, like medicare or hospital insurance, would become impossible, or, like bilingual education, would depend upon the individual choice of each province.

We could fly apart. From being, today, one of the world's most decentralized countries, we would become, tomorrow, easily the most decentralized. We would be held together less by the central government, which would become remote from individual citizens, than by a collective decision to build "a future together."

These remedies are draconian. To justify them, the task force declares that Canada is passing through "a crisis of existence itself." Hence, to survive as a country we have to take the risk we may reduce the country to ungovernability.

The key question is whether this crisis is real, or is just transitory griping brought on by economic hard times and compounded by political empire-building. Also whether, even if the crisis is real, the solution of massive decentralization and the reduction of Ottawa to a rump government responsible exclusively only for defence, the post office and the money supply, and jointly with the provinces, for economic management, would accomplish no more than to postpone the inevitable.



JOHN ROBARTS
. . . express our differences

To these questions, there are no snap answers. Highly decentralized countries in which citizens identify more with the parts than with the whole sometimes fall apart (United Arab Republic, Pakistan), and sometimes hang together (Switzerland; post-war Yugoslavia). Or, as another test, among couples who "live together," a minority marry, but the average term of their relationship is 18 months.

Easier to identify are the political consequences of the task force report. It pats the provincial premiers on the back, and slaps Prime Minister Trudeau in the face.

In the Commons, Trudeau called the report "a landmark contribution." A contribution, though, he'd have preferred not have had placed in his path. For practical purposes, the report repudiates all of Trudeau's constitutional policies during his 11 years in ffice.

Instead of Trudeau's view of Quebec as "a province like the others," the task force proposes a constitutional declaration of Quebec's "distinctiveness." Quebec would achieve back door "special status" (which Trudeau has denounced as heresy) by offering all provinces expanded jurisdiction in the expectation that Quebec alone would occupy all the additional territory.

Even on bilingualism, the task force, co-chaired by Jean-Luc Pepin, a former Trudeau cabinet minister, breaks step with Trudeau. It says the federal government should continue to be bilingual. Elsewhere, each province would decide how much bilingualism to provide in education and in government services. The existing constitutional bilingual protection for anglophones in Quebec and francophones outside it (Section 133 of the British North America Act) should be dropped from the new constitution, the task force recommends.

Wouldn't Notice

As for the provincial premiers, the task force report will send them racing into the Feb. 5-6 constitutional conference with their tails up and hands out. The task force's proposals for decentralization, down to details such as provincial appointment of lieutenant-governors, exceeds the demands of even the strongest of provincial spokesmen like Alberta's Peter Lougheed.

In the end, the task force may have delivered itself of too much, too late.

Too late, because had the task force been around, we would have ended our constitutional debate back in 1971, when only Trudeau's refusal to decentralize social policy blocked approval of the Victoria charter.

Too late as well because, assured of their right to be unlingual and to a "special status," Quebecers, in 1976, probably would have felt no need to elect a separatist government.

Too much, because the task force, now, has over-compensated. To solve the problems of "duality" and of "regionalism," it would create a Canada in which Canadians lived so far apart from each other that, if they no longer lived together, many would not notice.

They Are Working

Your correspondent, May Ethel Birch (Wrong Track, Jan. 3) is right in believing that children should not be born to suffer and she will be glad to know that the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada is equally concerned and has sponsored family planning programs in Hong Kong, India, Korea, Lesotho, Bangladesh and Indonesia.

Although facilities are still extremely inadequate (with the exception of China), almost every developing country has given family planning top priority. To mention only four:

☐ The national population policy of Bangladesh has a 1980 target of 20 per cent for elegible couples practising family planning and is offering a variety of incentives for permanent sterilization ranging from cash to one year's free schooling for children.

☐ Nepal has formed a nine-member Population Co-ordination Board.

☐ The Indonesian government is supporting programs in the three heaviest populated islands where 65 per cent of the population live.

☐ In China contraceptives are delivered free on a house to house basis.

It is not religious bias which prevents most people in developing countries from adopting family planning, but a combination of factors: logistics — poor roads and transportation; facilities — inadequate distribution and unsuitable contraceptives; illiteracy — often as high as 80 per cent; and the deep seated beliefs that children are wealth, not burdens, they provide the extra hands to work the land and are their parents only support in age and that death will snatch half their children before the age of five. Numbers are their only insurance.

According to the latest United Nations demographic yearbook, of the 88 countries for which figures are available, 77 report a decline in rates of growth, and it is now expected that the global population will be 6,253 billion at the turn of the century instead of the anticipated eight billion, albeit, still a very frightening figure. — Pamela Lee MacRae, Director, Information Services, Unitarian Service Committee, 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa.

Losing Freedom

I am writing to express my grave concern over the rising forces of repression in our country. Specifically, I am very alarmed about the mindless banning of books by our greatest writers. Our children now, and perhaps all of us tomorrow are being denied access to those very materials which best define ourselves to ourselves.

My question is: why are not the voices of leading and responsible churchmen being heard in response to these excesses? Do they really feel comfortable with the idea that the Reverend Kenneth Campbell of Renaissance Canada should be perceived as the leading voice of Christianity in Canada? Surely his attacks on many fine Canadian authors must convince us otherwise.

Therefore, I urge the more rational of the clergy and other leaders of opinion to speak out. As a recent article in the United Church Observer put it: "Censorship is unChristian, it is obscene." If freedom of thought is to be further stifled in Canada, can our other freedoms including freedom of religion, be secure? — James N. Knechtel, 2067 Lorne Terrace.

Christmas Thanks

Meals on Wheels thanks all who helped during the Christmas season. To the many who sent donations enabling us to deliver extra meals and "goodies" to our many shut-ins, to Eaton's for their gift of 118 poinsettias, and especially to the volunteers who delivered these gifts along with their regular meal deliveries. Without these wonderful volunteers Meals on Wheels could not possibly operate. — Joan Plumpton, Co-ordinator, Meals on Wheels, 286 Hampton Road.

Some 15,000 of you gave blood last year, and Red Cross says thanks.

Thanks, Bleeders

The Red Cross wishes to thank the public for its sustained support of the blood services program in 1978. Communities from Sooke through Victoria to Sidney are responsible for an attendance record exceeding 15,000 donors for the first time in its 32-year history.

The branch is grateful for the hundreds of hours of help by volunteers who served at clinics: the businesses, clubs, military, schools, university, and provincial and municipal governments for sponsoring clinics, the donations of refreshments, the generosity of the news media and that unseen multitude who spent hours on their phones reminding people of blood donor clinics.

Meeting the needs of our hospitals for blood would be impossible without their generous gift of time and self. A special thanks goes to the thousands who donated the gift of life. Without their contribution, the whole effort would have been in vain.

On behalf of the thousands of British Columbians who are the beneficiaries of this humanitarian act, our heartfelt thanks.

Red Cross anticipates that meeting our hospitals' needs in 1979 will put even greater demands on the patience as well as the generosity of blood donors. Restrictions in budget and increased need for blood components, has meant that donor teams cannot be increased nor new equipment purchased, and more blood must be collected in the Lower Mainland because of the time factor involved. Southern Vancouver Island must still attempt to maintain its contribution, however, if the Red Cross is to match supply to need. — Eric Simmons, President, Victoria Red Cross.

We're Not Nazis

In the the Times Jan. 13 there's an article ('Nazis Among Us' Hunted by New Group) about an organization calling itself the Canadian Holocaust Remembrance Association which seeks not only to round up any Nazi war criminals who may be hiding in Canada, but also appeals to the government to introduce legislation to quash the Nationalist Party of Canada, which it deems to be rightist, white-supremacist and Nazi.

I wholeheartedly agree that any Nazi war criminals should be brought to book — provided they really are war criminals. However, for that association's information, we in the Canada Party are 100 per cent for our Canadian constitution, the British North America Act, especially our constitutional monarchy, and reject with scorn all forms of collectivism, be they fascist, Nazi, socialist or communist, all of which are anathema to those who genuinely love freedom.

It is part of the strange arrogance of the left that they claim that they are the progressive elements and that the right are reactionaries, whereas history has shown that the opposite is the case. In countries where the left has overthrown rightist regimes, the new masters have proved far more tyrannical than the old.

A great deal of emotional claptrap is talked about rightism, reaction, white supremacy, anti-semitism and so on. Like a good many synthetic evangelists, marxists and other totalitarians are full of slogans, catchphrases and pat answers and the tragedy is that it is often as not people of good intentions and idealistic dispositions who fall for these devil's lies.

The Canada Party must not be confused with the National Front in the United Kingdon, which party is decidedly Nazi-oriented, being also anti-semitic, anti-Arab as well as anti-Jewish, despite its professed sympathy with the Palestinian Arabs. — Richard D. Corrance, 710 Cormorant street.

More Oldsters?

The president of the Victoria Real Estate Board displays a misplaced sense of concern in suggesting that Victoria should try to actively entice more "retirement settlers" to build up the population base (Realtors Urge Retirement Pitch; Times, Jan. 15).

Of course, no one could object to grandmothers and grandads coming to this area if they chose to, particularly as Victoria provides an ideal climate and environment for retirement.

However, about a fifth of the city's population is already over 65 years of age and, in some areas (Fairfield, James Bay), this figure is in excess of 30 per cent, by far the highest concentration of elderly residents in Canada. To further add to this population imbalance would only tend to increase the problems of loneliness and isolation experienced by many older newcomers to these areas of the city. It will also increase the pressure on medical and social services available to the current retired population.

Mr. Highton also seems to ignore the effects of a further retirement influx on the residential neighborhoods adjacent to downtown and Beacon Hill Park. With vacancy rates already very low again, we can soon expect to see a resumption of the pressures for indiscriminate apartment redevelopment of the remaining family housing stock in the "prime locations" to which he refers.

For this reason, Mr. Highton's proposal is all the more surprising in view of the pious articles on the virtues of older homes and heritage preservation which have appeared in Real Estate Victoria [the board's own newspaper] over the last year (eg. June 1-7, 1978). — Colin Akroyd, President, Fairfield Community Association.

Indian Agitation Viewed As Thrust for Freedom

By GOPAL SHARMAN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It is agitation time in India again.

As of this writing, a number of people have died in police shootings, and the government has packed thousands of agitators into India's overcrowded jails.

The agitators do not look different, in the news pictures on TV or in the daily press, from the crowds seen agitating when Indira Gandhi's state of emergency was declared in 1975. Then, as now, it was claimed the government, by its actions, had brought about the demise of democracy. Now, as then, the government couldn't care less about what the opposition says.

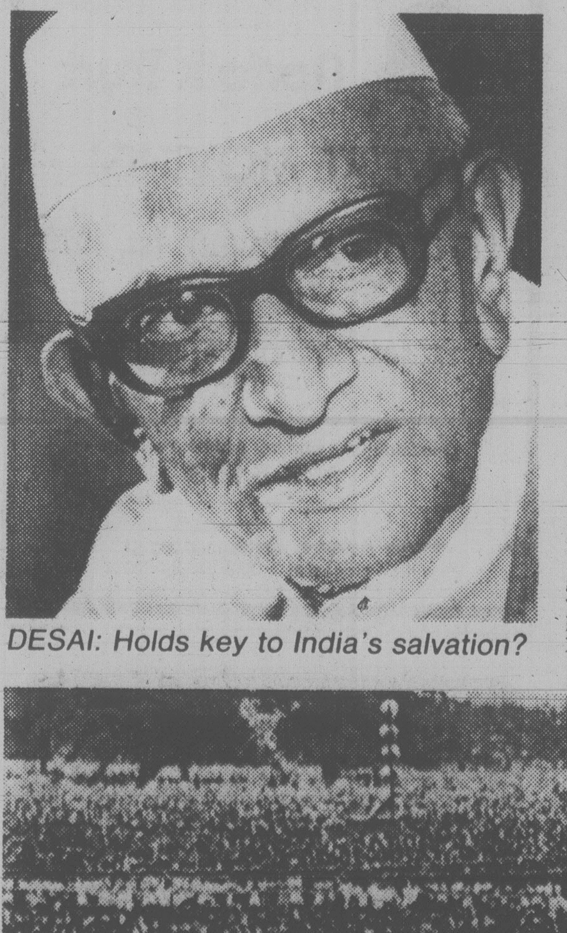
It is agitation time, and how easily one, as an individual, identifies with the opposition. The government's couldn't-care-less image is instantly recognized by one and all.

Three years ago, when the emergency came, the state didn't care less that Babu Lal, a skilled mason who has worked with my theatre in New Delhi, the Akshara, the last five years, was away at work the day the demolition squad converged on the neighborhood where he had his home and tore all the houses down.

Wasteland

Each householder, when he returned in the evening, got a shabby little piece of mimeographed official paper with a number on it — to go claim a minuscule plot of land 20 miles out in the swamps and wasteland east of Delhi. By a few minutes, Babu Lal missed the official who was handing out these slips — distributed for the privilege of building your home anew at your own expense, in another slum nowhere near your place of work but 20 miles out; with no transport, electricity, filtered drinking water or sewage.

Even so, the slips gave you ownership of one of those plots: 10 feet by 20 feet, side-by-side and back-to-back in barrack-like rows, with no way to cross-ventilate once it was all built up. Slummy by any standard, but it would have meant a place of his own for Babu Lal: 21 years old, a fine mason but schooled only to the 8th grade and newly married.



DESAI: Holds key to India's salvation?

How does one cope with a system that performs on a strictly no-audience-participation basis? Not that you are not required to pay for the performance.

Shortly after he became prime minister in 1977, Morarji Desai got his bill from Delhi Telephones, a government undertaking. It was so grossly inflated, and not for the first time either, that Desai refused to pay. The matter came up in the Lok Sabha, the lower house of Parliament where scarcely a member had not had the same experience for years.

The resulting furor in parliament was brief and barely noted in the press. Privilege helped the VIPs to cope with it on this occasion. Serious debate on the issue — which might have called into question the wisdom of state monopoly of all communications in the country — was carefully avoided.

The public, the unprivileged who pay through their noses for Delhi's (or Bombay's or Calcutta's or Madras') non-performing telephone system — was left to fend for itself with a system that, by any international standard, is a disgrace.

For every call you get right, you must pay for at least four wrong ones and, on ideological grounds, the state retains its inefficient monopoly, even though corrupt practices have created something like a parallel telephone system — stolen out of authorized subscribers' lines by departmental employees.

To aid such piracy, subscribers' bills have local and long-distance calls lumped together, unitemized; should you complain that you never made as many local calls as your bill suggests, it's easy to attribute the charge to long-distance calls. You ask who made them. But who can tell? And your individual word is never as good as theirs.

For the individual, that is the syndrome: You wish to make a point, to be heard, you wish to be taken seriously. But the way authority is constituted, you soon discover that you must hear, not speak; that you will be told, not heard.

All things, good and bad, come to an end. One's sense of resignation, too. Then you do not wish to live with it, this depressing situation, but change it. "Smash it" comes later, as it appears to have now, during agitation time. First, try to change it. Make your point somehow; speak up!

Where?

On stage (as far as I am concerned), of course. Easier said than done. The British Raj in India enacted the Dramatic Performances Act of 1876 — and it has stayed on the statute books to this day.

Companies

I was 12 when independence came in 1947, and I remember performances in Lucknow, my home town in the northern state of Uttar Pradesh, of two first-class companies on tour. These were Udday Shankar's dance theatre and Prithvi Raj's drama theatre.

They were part of the awakening that the freedom struggle led by Mahatma Gandhi had occasion in all fields of endeavor.

With independence, the focus shifted exclusively to politics — the bickering, manipulation, unprincipled pursuit of power. It did not take both the companies I had seen as a boy very long to wind up after independence.

They could not earn their keep, could not say what they wanted to. Not even a highly ideologized company like the Communist Indian People's Theatre Association managed to survive competition from the heavier real stuff going on in the political arena.

Within 10 years of independence all legitimate professional activity in the theatre was wiped out. Then, as now, the police commissioner had to pass the script before it could be staged. Where the police commissioner is lax about it, the entertainment-tax commissioner is the one you must get clearance from. Not just admission rates, but the script, too.

What has the theatre got for the state to be so frightened of? Nothing at all. And that is the way it is going to remain, the state decides.

It doles out little grants here and there among amateurs, society ladies and their ilk, in an effort to keep theatre small and sporadic, not let it get out of hand.

Any wonder that, except for my own 50-seat Akshara, not a single city anywhere in the country — Bombay, Calcutta, Madras, Delhi — has a nightly theatre.

If the government will not let you speak up on stage, it is hardly going to welcome you with open arms on radio and television, both of which are owned and controlled by the state. There is absolutely no entree for the individual in broadcasting.

Films? India has the biggest film industry in the world and, perhaps, the least free. There is a Central Board of Film Censors that enables the govenment to keep this medium on a tight leash. No discussion of political issues is allowed in the cinema, certainly no criticism of the state. To cap it all, no kissing, either — but, for the moment, let that pass.

Shortly before the emergency was proclaimed, a member of Parliament in Mrs. Gandhi's Congress Party at the time, Amrit Nahata, tried poking fun at the state in a satirical film called (in English) The Chair of Office. The country was in a state of emergency and the film went to the officials from where it allegedly found its way to a shredding machine in Sanjay Gandhi's automobile factory.

Undaunted, Nahata, a Janata Party member of Parliament now, recently remade the film. But the Janata-appointed Censor Board ordered so many cuts and changes that it flopped almost before it was relesed. It flopped subsequently, too, and poor Nahata again had only his own party to blame.

That is the film scene: You have to see an Indian movie to be appalled at the unreality of the world it portrays, the magnitude of its removal from life. Satyajit Ray in Calcutta is virtually the solitary exception in that sea of puerility.

But Ray's films are rarely seen in India outside his native Calcutta.

Could these issues not be brought up in the national press? This censorship of ideas, this debasement of democracy's prime constituent, the individual? The constant fear that the individual must live with is certain knowledge of one's individual inconsequentiality, helplessness against authority?

Several questions there; several answers, too. Where does one begin?

In one's own experience? Last August, when the Akshara was under government orders for eviction and demolition, not one of the eight national dailies that publish from Delhi had a word about it.

We lobbied the central cabinet — several members of which came out openly in support of the Akshara. Our legal counsel in that month-long crisis was P. N. Lekhi, a fearless champion of individual liberty and, importantly, the chief government counsel in the historic Shah Commission hearings on the emergency excesses.

Not a Whisper

Still not a whisper of it in the press. Not one supportive, protective voice — editorial or reportorial — for a free institution struggling for its life. Finally, we met Prime Minister Desai, who, seeing the injustice to us, stayed eviction and demolition proceedings.

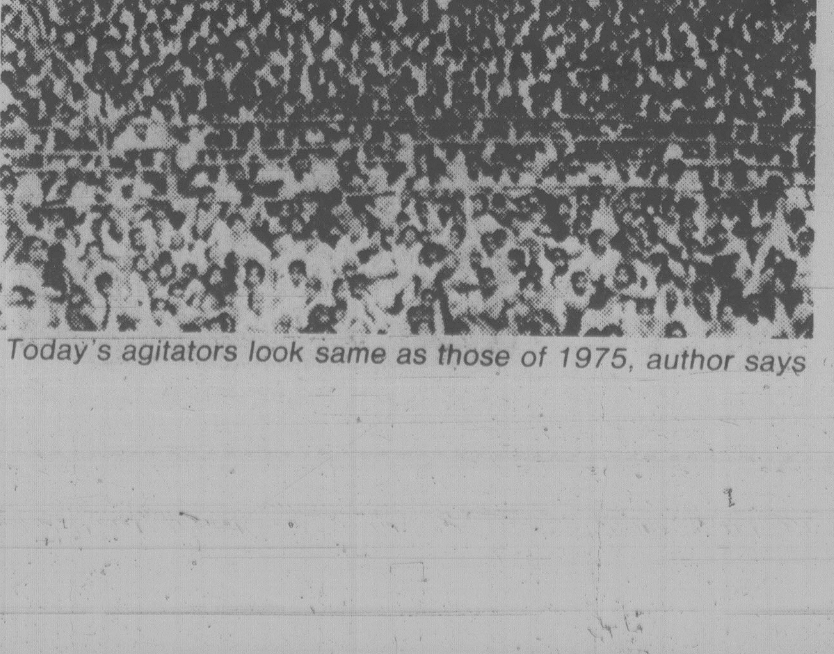
As if that were not enough demonstration of his commitment to freedom and fair practice, he visited the Akshara five days after his own government's deadline for the theatre's eviction and demolition to sit through a two-and-a-half-hour performance. Still not a mention in any newspaper.

Let your defeat proclaim itself, but beware any mention of your triumps. That is not an ancient Indian proverb, but rather a bitterly learned lesson for survival in a climate where the individual is ever suspect, ever mistrusted by the state. Creep along, somehow, one day at a time.

As an individual, what option do you have? The system is so all-pervasive, so convoluted from being prone to corruption all the time.

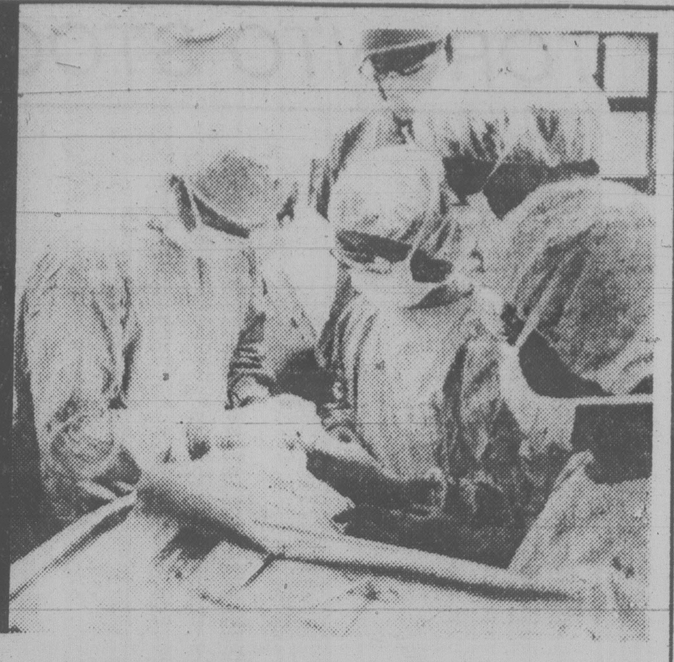
In post-independence India only one last, drastic, radical remedy remains yet to be tried: freedom. The way Mahatma Gandhi had wanted it: rapid and effective decentralization of power. Less to the state, more to the individual.

Of the powers that be, Morarji Desai stands out as, perhaps, the only one to know that the time for that is now or never.



Today's agitators look same as those of 1975, author says

Surgeons' Strike Saved Lives!



By WILLIAM SCOBIE
The Observer

When hundreds of doctors serving the seven million people who live in and around Los Angeles went on strike last year for more than a month, there were dire predictions of a crisis in health care which would send many patients to an early grave. But what actually happened?

Now it has been told. During the period of the strike — doctors were "withholding their services" to protest against soaring medical malpractice insurance premiums — Los Angeles experienced a sharp drop in its death rate.

The reason, says Dr. Milton Roemer, a University of California researcher, is that most of the city's surgeons were not at work. The amount of surgery performed in the strike period was almost 60 per cent below normal rates. And when "normal" surgery was resumed, the death rate in Los Angeles County quickly rose from 19 to 26 per 100,000 population.

10,000 Lives a Year

How serious is the national problem of unneeded surgery? "Very serious indeed," says California Congressman John Moss, chairman of a House committee investigating the question. "Our findings were that needless surgery takes some 10,000 American lives a year, at a cost of around $4 billion."

Those rates, according to Moss's investigators, have remained virtually unchanged for the past five years. From a purely monetary viewpoint, that $4 billion is a highly unwelcome addition to America's staggering annual health-care bill, which topped $160 billion in 1978 — larger than the combined sales of General Motors, Exxon and Ford, the nation's three largest corporations.

From the viewpoint of the once-respected medical profession, those figures are deeply alarming. Many surgeons are themselves calling for a cleanup of unethical practices. But the medical establishment claims that the problem has been exaggerated.

In fact, scores of studies over recent years have suggested that the U.S. surgeon is knife-happy. The basic figures appear to change little from study to study. The British and U.S. systems are often compared. Britain allocates only 5.6 per cent of its GNP to medical care, the U.S. 8.6 per cent. American surgeons operate twice as frequently as British. Yet in the United Kingdom, two accepted measures of a nation's health care — infant and maternal mortality rates — are significantly lower.

Someone is being operated on in this country every two-thirds of a second. Of an annual 20 million operations, only a handful are of the dramatic, life-saving type depicted with such relish on television. Increases have been sharpest in the procedures most questioned — hysterectomics, prostate removals, and tonsillectomies.

One-quarter of the U.S. population is now tonsil-less, and investigators claim that only eight per cent of these operations were clearly justified.

Even the American College of Surgeons acknowledges that nearly 30 per cent more surgeons are at work than are actually needed. Of America's 350,000 physicians, 95,000 perform operations, says the College; and at least a quarter of these are not fully trained in specialized surgery.

One California doctor — who has admitted taking "speed" drugs and tranquillizers while in surgery — has 50 malpractice actions pending against him, mostly for performing needless back operations. He has already lost three actions, the top award against him being $3.7 million.

'Too Many Surgeons'

Why is it happening? "Because," says retired surgeon Dr. George Crile, author of Surgery: Your Choices, Your Alternatives, "there are too many surgeons. Doctors love to operate, and they get paid for it. Two-thirds of U.S. surgeons are unsalaried, i.e. their fee for the operation is their pay. It's a conflict of interest situation."

Scores of union and other health insurance plans now offer to pay for "second opinions." Doctors themselves are forming organizations to monitor surgery covered by federal programs. More hospitals are adopting regulations which check on the need for the most-abused types of operation.

The crisis has certainly dispelled the notion of the American surgeon as a god-like, not-to-be-questioned folk hero.

UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA
UNIVERSITY EXTENSION IS . . .

CREATIVE EXPRESSION FOR WOMEN . . .

This course provides an opportunity for women to learn new ways to think about and to experience their personal creativity in a co-operative, non-competitive content. It will explore the creation of personal and group symbols and images in the fields of dance/movement, music, poetry and drawing. Questions will be raised about the cultural rules and expectations and social relationships that often constrict the individual woman and her creative products.

The course is especially pertinent to women who have doubts about their potential to be Poets, Painters, Musicians, Dancers and Scholars.

Co-ordinated by Janet Patterson with guest facilitators: Holly Smith for dance/movement, Judy Boel for drawing, Artemis Mountain Eagle for music.

Mondays, beginning February 5; 7:30-10:00 p.m.; 5 sessions; Clearihue A309. Fee: $45

INVOLVEMENT IN THEATRE WORKSHOPS . . .

DIRECTING THE PLAY is an intensive workshop in stage directing, modelled on the rehearsal schedule of the Phoenix Theatre's production of "Lysistrata". Guest instructors/lecturers will be drawn from the production and design staff on faculty and you will be able to compare your interpretation and analysis of the play with theirs. The study will culminate in a choice seat at the play followed by a seminar with the director and cast members.
Tuesdays, beginning February 13, 7:00-9:00 p.m., six sessions. Location: Room 109, Cornett Building. Fee: $40.

STORY THEATRE is a technique used to adapt almost any narrative material for stage presentation simply and effectively with a minimum of set or props. Most often used for children, it is equally suitable for more mature material such as the Chekov short stories.
We will focus on the difficulties of narration and characterization; developing stories from the narrative or book form to the dramatic; creating an imaginative stage environment.
May be of particular interest to teachers and librarians. Wednesdays, beginning February 14, 7:00-9:00 p.m., six sessions. Location: Room 109, Cornett Building. Fee: $40.

A SERIES OF ENGINEERING LECTURES . . .

"Legal Implications for Practicing Engineers in 1979" will be presented February 7 at 7:30 p.m. by Mr. B. Shapiro, LL.B., who is associated with the Vancouver law firm Bull, Housser and Tupper.

Location: Clearihue A306. Fee: $2.
Watch for advertisements on our next presentation.

PEOPLE TALKING BACK . . .

Speak up. Talk Back. Get in Touch.

People Talking Back begins on CBC Television Sunday, February 4, 1979 at 5 p.m. Using television as a medium of communication, Canadians will talk with one another across the street and across the country. We'll talk about our cultural differences — the positive and negative aspects. About politicians and the media — are we getting biased information? About our flagging and difficult-to-understand economy. About the unrest and change in the workplace. About where we go from here — alternative options for our political, economic, cultural and social future.

AN EYE IN THE SKY?

Remote Sensing
The advent of satellites has given a new dimension to our ability to look at the earth from above. Some spectacular results have been achieved which have led foresters, geographers, environmentalists, oceanographers and others to a new understanding of our planet. Results such as pinpointing effluents in our rivers, measuring heat loss areas in homes, delineation of coastal regions in arguments of fishing rights, measuring inaccessible forest resources, tracking forest fires, crop health and development of soils, environmental damage associated with development schemes, arctic ice formations in shipping lanes.
This course shows how we as humans see things, particularly how we see things in colour, and how the process is duplicated and extended by instruments such as cameras carried by helicopters, balloons, rockets and satellites. Special consideration is given to work currently being done in the Victoria area. The talks will be illustrated by films and coloured slides.
Mondays, beginning February 5; 7:30-9:30 p.m.; 10 sessions; Cornett 109. Fee: $35.

Call us for a complete list of our courses and events; 477-6911, local 4802. We're open 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday; Room A214, University Centre, parking underground.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Continued gains in financial and building shares sent the Toronto stock market moderately higher Monday in active mid-afternoon trading.

Among industrials, Selkirk Holdings A climbed 2¼ to $18 on the sale of 1,200 shares, Hudson's Bay Co. ¾ to $22, Cara Operations ¾ to $9⅞, Cooper Canada Ltd. ¾ to $8¾ and Vulcan Industrial Packaging ⅝ to $10.

Bank of British Columbia dropped 1¾ to $35 on 577 shares, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 1¾ to $59¼, Dome Petroleum ¾ to $100½, Seagram Co. ⅝ to $35⅜ and Union Oil of Canada ½ to $23⅛.

United Siscoe Mines advanced 1 to $9¾, Teck Corp. A ¼ to $12¼ and Sherritt Gordon Mines A ⅛ to $10¼. Ego Resources was down 30 cents to $4.50 and Kerr Addison Mines A ¼ to $11¾.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum rose ⅜ to $24⅞, Trans-Canada Resources 13 cents to $2.04 and Bonanza Oil and Gas ⅛ to $5⅝. Numac Oil and Gas slipped ½ to $28 and Total Petroleum North America ⅜ to $18¾.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a small loss Monday, slipping from the peak it reached last week.

The market had risen steadily in recent days amid hopes that interest rates had reached or passed their high point. But a number of analysts have questioned whether that speculation might not be premature.

Several New York banks cut their broker loan rates Monday to 11 from 11½ per cent. Investors still seemed skeptical, however, that that indicated the start of a lasting downtrend.

United Technologies rose ¼ to $39⅛. The company reported higher fourth-quarter earnings and raised its dividend.

U.S. Industries, which listed higher 1978 earnings, gained ⅜ to $8¼.

The NYSE's composite index lost 0.15 to 56.84. Volume was 16.88 million shares as of mid-afternoon.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — All major indices advanced as prices posted major gains in moderate afternoon trading at the Montreal Stock Exchange. The 85-stock composite index climbed 0.55 to 237.22.

Volume at 2 p.m. EST was 427,367 shares, compared to the 465,617 shares traded up to the same time Friday.

London

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 463.3, off 1.7.

Leading industrials were mixed, while mining and gold issues advanced.

Canadian stocks were narrowly higher.

Craigmont Postpones Merritt Mine Closing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Craigmont Mines Ltd. says it will not close its Merritt operation as early as planned.

The company said in a press release that recent studies show the operation, which had been scheduled to close in October because of exhaustion of ore, can be extended.

Mining now will continue until the fall of 1979 with the production of copper concentrate to continue into the first quarter of 1980.

A company spokesman said it is the third time operations have been extended. Mining at the site began in 1961 and it now employs 94 persons.

The company also said that, although high grades of copper have been encountered at the Chu Chua prospect near Barriere in southeastern B.C., the tonnage now indicated is insufficient for the deposit to be considered economic.

Quebec Follows Franchise Route

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec plans a new law to protect people who invest in franchise operations, Industry Minister Rodrigue Tremblay said.

Speaking to the Quebec Automobile Dealers' Association, Tremblay said people buying a franchise get a ready-made business but often have to make a sizable investment — and pay a portion of receipts to franchisors.

"There have been some unhappy experiences with people losing their life savings after signing up with some franchisors," he said, adding that the situation is under study by a government committee.

Alan Karp, general counsel to the Toronto-based Association of Canadian Franchisors, has said the association recognizes that "legislation is sometimes necessary to protect the little guy."

Alberta is the only Canadian province with a franchise protection law on the books. Passed in 1971, it requires people selling franchises to provide a prospectus which meets disclosure requirements set by the Alberta Securities Commission.

ELECTION DOCUMENT 'ROUTINE'

WINNIPEG (CP) — The author of an internal Liberal Party document that urges federal Liberal candidates to prepare for a June 18 general election says the document is routine literature.

Redge Alcock, campaign director for the federal Liberal Party in Manitoba, said Saturday that party members often get "pep-talk literature" to keep them up to date.

He said June 18 was mentioned as a possible election date only because it seemed a logical time for a spring election. He said he wants party members to be ready.

Liberal MPs Impatient for Vote

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau is reported under increasing pressure from his backbenchers to call an early election.

Liberals are reported buoyed both by the party's improved standing in the public opinion polls and the aggressive election-style performance of the prime minister in the Commons last week.

Mark MacGuigan of Windsor, Ont., said in an interview that most backbenchers want Trudeau to go now and not wait until April.

"The caucus was very, very up," he said, referring to comments on Trudeau's Commons style.

At the end of the first week of Parliament following the Christmas vacation, Liberals and Progressive Conservatives agreed that electioneering will be the main action in the Commons this week.

They said the Commons will become more acidic as the election approaches despite the feeling of some that voters could be turned off by what they see on television.

Trudeau has promised to call an election this spring. Most speculation has said that he will call the election around Easter and voting will take place in June.

But Liberals were impressed with Trudeau's willingness to take on all comers Thursday and Friday. Using large quantities of wit and sarcasm, Trudeau won round for round in question period exchanges.

Liberals link that kind of performance with the Gallup Poll putting them only two percentage points behind the Conservatives in December, a considerable improvement over an earlier 10-point spread.

Despite his report of backbencher attitudes, MacGuigan said he does not expect an early election.

"Judging from how cautious (Trudeau) has been before, I don't think he's going to take a sudden plunge in the middle of February.

To hear Conservative whip Steve Paproski tell it, Trudeau's sarcasm and jibes at the opposition are just another cross his party has to bear. The party planned no special tactics to combat what Paproski called Trudeau's histrionics.

"There's no doubt about it. Trudeau is one of the greatest actors Canada has ever had."

He said it's a sure bet that the Liberals will be heckling and attacking his party more as an election draws nearer, because they want to draw attention away from the government's handling of the economy.

Nothing Left For Feds?

PARIS (AFP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said in an interview published Sunday that if the Parti Quebecois government were given everything it wanted there would be nothing left of the federal government but the power to make war and peace and talk to the Queen.

In an interview with Le Point, a Paris weekly, Trudeau was asked if he considered Quebec Premier Rene Levesque intelligent. He replied: "Yes, very, but short sighted. If he were really intelligent he'd be on our side."

Trudeau said it would be stupid to deny that English-Canadians have often behaved like conquerors toward French-Canadians.

But it was easy to exploit the desire for revenge by the Quebecois and thereby try to impose a plan whose immediate result would be to throw Canada, including Quebec, into the hands of the United States, he said.

Que. Still Stalled At Its Stop Signs

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Transport Minister Lucien Lessard and Premier Rene Levesque just can't seem to untangle themselves from their public tussle on the burning issue of whether the word "stop" belongs on traffic signs in the province.

Lessard, who has decreed that "arret" is the right word for unilingual French stop signs, observed Sunday that Levesque would not "normally" have authority to force a change in his position. Such regulatory issues fall under the jurisdiction of the transport minister, not the cabinet at large.

In any case, the premier would not necessarily be able to impose his policy line on the cabinet because the issue is not politically important, Lessard said in a television interview.

He was commenting on Levesque's recent criticism of the decision to replace the province's bilingual "stop-arret" signs with unilingual French versions reading "arret." The problem is that several Quebec linguists contend that stop, the imperative of the verb stopper, is actually the correct French expression for the command to halt.

The single word stop on the familiar red ocatagon is the version used throughout the world, including France.

In Washington Thursday, Levesque acknowledged to American journalists that the decision to use arret reflects "some ridiculous aspects of what we call francization."

At a weekend meeting of the Parti Quebecois executive, the premier repeated his words and told an interviewer the cabinet would discuss the issue at its regular weekly meeting this Wednesday.

Lessard noted in his Sunday interview that he had not spoken to Levesque since the premier's return from Washington, and he had only newspaper reports of Levesque's words to go on.

Tobacco Company Evaded Taxes

MONTREAL (CP) — MacDonald Tobacco Inc. pleaded guilty here to a charge of failing to report 1973 income of $1.39 million, depriving the federal government of $444,097' in taxes.

Sessions Judge Gilbert Morier is expected to rule Feb. 16 on a Crown request to fine the Montreal-based firm $200,000.

However, a MacDonald lawyer said the back taxes already had been paid and that the company also had paid a required 25-per-cent penalty on the outstanding taxes.

The lawyer told Judge Morier the case might have dragged on for years if the company had not admitted the offence and gone immediately to trial.

The court was told that a federal investigator worked on the case for more than a year before establishing the exact amount of income MacDonald failed to report.

Is NOW Too Early?

It's by no means too early to place your son's or daughter's name on a waiting list if you think there's any chance that he or she may wish to enter St. Michaels University School this fall, or in some future year.

Listing your youngster's name costs nothing and does not commit you, or the school, in any way; but, all things being equal, priority for available places will be given to those whose names are entered earliest. Some names are already registered for the late 1980s.

The school enrols boys in Grades I to XII and girls in Grades X-XII.

For details of entrance tests, and other information, write to John Schaffter, M.A., Headmaster, St. Michaels University School, 3400 Richmond Road, Victoria, B.C. V8P 4P5.

MP's Wife Treated

the Soviets were making great strides in brain-washing.

The Orlikows have written to U.S. intelligence director Stansfield Turner complaining about the CIA role in her treatment. Mr. Orlikow has also discussed the matter with the Canadian external affairs department which, he says, is keeping a "watching brief" on the matter.

He says he has learned that the U.S. justice department has directed the CIA to compensate surviving "victims" of the experimentation for any long-lasting damage, if the cases can be documented.

According to documents procured by Marks, Cameron subjected 53 patients to what he called "de-patterning"—in effect flushing out the mind through the use of shock therapy and prolonged, drug-induced sleep.

One of his ambitions was to cure schizophrenia by means of inducing amnesia in disturbed patients.

He also experimented with sensory deprivation on patients. Among his medical notes was found the case of a 52-year-old woman, referred to as Mary C., who was placed in a special "box" for 35 days. The treatment failed to cure her "mental anxiety," he wrote.

The patients, including Mrs. Orlikow, were not informed that they were research subjects.

The mind-control experiments were first brought to light in 1977 in articles by Marks in the New York Times.

The work of Cameron, who was killed in a mountaineering accident in the Adirondacks, has been largely discredited by the psychiatric community. After the 1977 disclosures, which only mentioned his work briefly, Dr. Donald Hebb, head of the McGill University psychology department at the time Cameron was in charge of psychiatry, described his concepts as "awful."

"It called for no intellectual respect," he said. "If I had a graduate student who talked like that, I'd throw him out."

But in 1956, when Mrs. Orlikow met him for the first time, Dr. Cameron was a powerful force in the psychiatric community. He had an international reputation, was founder of the World Psychiatric Association,

Tall and imposing, speaking with a pronounced Scottish Burr, he was "the strongest personality I ever met in my life," Mrs. Orlikow recalled in a recent interview from Winnipeg.

In the book, Marks describes the experience of another Canadian woman, an Ottawa politician's wife who suffered a mental collapse in 1959. Marks calls her "Lauren G." to protect her anonymity.

She was also referred to Dr. Cameron, who prescribed electroshock in conjunction with "sleep therapy."

The shocks administered by Dr. Cameron after the patient was put into drugged sleep, were many times more intense than were usually given, and the convulsions much more severe. Screams of patients would echo through the hospital.

As Dr. Cameron explained in his own medical writings, the object of this de-patterning was to create a state of amnesia. The patient was supposed to recover memory of his or her normal behavior, but not the schizophrenic bahavior.

Once the patient had undergone this mental flushing, Dr. Cameron theorized, he or she could then be programmed for new patterns of behavior, using the repeated taped messages.

BOGUS STAMPS GET THROUGH

WINNIPEG (CP) — Nine out of 13 letters mailed with bogus or insufficient postage by The Free Press were delivered without question by the post office, the newspaper says.

A letter with a picture of William Lyon Mackenzie King affixed to the top right hand corner made it, so did one with the logo of Winnipeg Jets hockey team and one bearing an import label from a package of American cigarettes.

Reproductions of the three items were among a host of bogus stamps used by the newspaper recently to see if the post office's automated mail-sorting equipment can spot improperly posted letters.

The letters were mailed in two batches; seven within Winnipeg and six in Toronto and all with Winnipeg destinations. Nine were delivered without question and the other four were marked postage due.

Dick Everett, district public relations manager, said it is possible to fool the post office "in some isolated cases."

"No system is foolproof. It's part of every sorting clerk's duties to observe letters that are shortpaid, as we call it."

Everett said two methods are used to sort letters; a sorter sits at a keyboard and codes mail as it flies by at a rate of about 20,000 items an hour, or a computerized optical scanner codes the letter.

IWA Seeks 14-16% Wage Boost

by asking for only 14 per cent."

In addition to money, IWA members want improved pension and health-and-welfare benefits and shorter working hours.

"We are still co-ordinating our request for shorter hours because loggers and millworkers have different needs. Millworkers want to get out as soon as possible. In the bush they like to work longer, especially in remote camps."

Lewis said Victoria will push for two proposals. In the mills, the current three shifts of eight hours should be changed to four shifts of six hours, still permitting round-the-clock operation.

"Six hours is long enough for a shift in a sawmill."

For loggers, the proposal would be to begin paying from the marshalling depot, rather than with the first stroke of the axe.

"For loggers at Sooke and Jordan River, they sometimes travel as much as one hour into the bush and one hour out again. Including the eight hours work, that makes 10 hours in the bush.

"We say they should be in the bush only eight hours. If travelling in the bush takes two hours, then they should only have to work six hours to make up an eight-hour day."

Hours of work will be a major secondary item on the bargaining table, Lewis said.

In all, 60 contract changes will be requested by the Victoria local. Some of these may be weeded out at the joint IWA meeting in March.

But Lewis said the Victoria local will be tough about the request for a 20-per-cent wage increase.

Meanwhile, Forest Industrial Relations chairman Don Saunders, chief spokesman for the companies, said it is difficult to respond to IWA requests until they are the official united stand of the union.

In general terms, he said, the industry would prefer, as it always does, a multi-year contract.

The union traditionally asks for a one-year agreement and companies respond with a proposal for a multi-year pact.

"The norm has been for a two-year contract."

Profits of companies were improved in 1978, he said, but these funds would be needed this year for reinvestment to keep the industry in a competitive position and to secure jobs over a long period.

On the question of what might appear as a net loss in pay to inflation over the past two years, he said, the companies believe the IWA workers should consider gains made over a longer term.

"We believe there has been a net gain for the employees in the past six years."

Saunders said it would be premature to comment further at this time.

Welfare Girl Dumb, Ugly?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 14-year-old girl won an essay contest on what it's like to live on welfare but says she doesn't want her name released.

"All my friends and everyone I know are taxpayers and if they know that I want GAIN (guaranteed annual income for needy) rates raised they'll make me feel inferior," the girl said after the results of the contest were announced Sunday.

The contest, which attracted 124 entries, was sponsored by the Downtown Eastside Residents' Association (DERA), a group that works for the needy in Vancouver's downtown eastside.

The girl declared the over-all winner said she will use her prize ($1,000 worth of whatever she chooses) to further her education.

In her essay she wrote that she lives with her mother, two sisters and a brother in a four-room apartment for which they pay $215 a month.

"Living on GAIN is horrible. I didn't have a choice when I was born. Life is quite hard because we are getting just enough money to survive on. No luxuries at all."

She says that friends who know she lives on welfare have ridiculed her plans to attend university.

"I guess these friends expected that someone on welfare is supposed to be dumb, ugly and inactive."

DERA president Bruce Eriksen said there are 109,000 people on welfare in B.C.

Eriksen criticized the provincial human resources department and former human resources minister Bill Vander Zalm.

He said the department ran up a $110-million surplus without raising GAIN rates and Vander Zalm harassed the poor as a means of gaining political power.

"Mr. Vander Zalm has done such a good job of downgrading the poor that a lot of them are afraid to stand up to be counted because of what their neighbors will think.

"But until such a time as politicians stop using the poor as scapegoats, I guess we'll have that problem."

The association also presented awards to winners in four other categories — handicapped, elderly, single parent and employable.

Kay Charbonneau, 29, of Victoria, the winning single parent, says she lives with her two small daughters — aged 3½ and 17 months — on a $489-a-month GAIN allowance and a $40 family allowance.

The rent for her two-bedroom apartment in James Bay is $350 and she allows herself $28 a week for groceries. In her essay she itemized her complete budget to show that the GAIN allowance is barely adequate.

She says she is grateful to live in a society that allows her to stay home and be a full-time mother.

"But isn't it also my right?"

One of the questions posed by the essay organizers was whether the GAIN recipients envisaged becoming financially independent, and if so how.

Charbonneau, who holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in psychology and sociology, said today that from the outset she assumed she would come off the allowance at an early date, but when she began to think about ways and means the proposition appeared difficult.

She said she would probably to be able to get a job paying the minimum wage, which would give her about $100 a month more than she is receiving from GAIN. But someone would else would be raising her children.

"It comes down to putting a monetary value on being a mother," she said. "At the moment I feel it's important to stay home and be with my kids."

The winner in the employable category, a 32-year-old man who also did not want his name released, said a leg disability had restricted the kind of work he could perform and that he was depressed at having to accept welfare.

"When necessity takes preference over dignity and hunger becomes stronger than shame, even the proudest man in the prime of manhood must turn to either stealing or begging in order to live," he said.

"I chose to become a beggar, perhaps only because it did not suit my temperament to become a thief."

RARE BIBLES STOLEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Four thieves masquerading as book salesmen gained entrance to an Upper Manhattan apartment and stole 40 Armenian Bibles printed in the 10th and 17th centuries, police said. Police said the Bibles, owned by Artin Hagarian, were worth $100,000.

Pearson College Students Learn How to Come to the Rescue

Students at Lester B. Pearson College got some valuable first-hand experience in mountain rescue work on the weekend by taking part in an exercise in the Sooke Potholes area. Under the direction of the provincial emergency program and members of the Sooke fire department, Pearson students were involved in the simulated rescue of a victim who tumbled down the side of a steep, 250-foot cliff with sharp rocks and a rushing river below. Photo at left shows several students manning ropes at the top of the cliff, acting as belayers for rescuers on way down to the accident site. John Heavener (centre photo) carefully backs down the incline. The victim is loaded into a rescue basket (right photo), ready to be lifted to safety. (John McKay photos)

April Visit For Prince

Prince Charles will visit Victoria the first week of April, Prime Minister Trudeau's office announced today in Ottawa.

The Victoria visit, Charles' first here, will be part of a cross-country tour April 1-7 in which the Prince of Wales will visit with Governor - General Edward Schreyer in Ottawa and carry out several official duties.

The prince will visit World College of the Pacific (Pearson College) while in Victoria.

His agenda also includes visits to the Prince of Wales Northern Heritage Centre in Yellowknife, the Royal Winnipeg Rifles in Winnipeg and the Royal Regiment of Canada in Toronto.

Details of the tour will be released later.

Prince Charles was last in Canada when he attended the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton last summer.

The Queen Mother, meanwhile, is to attend the gathering of the Scottish clans in Nova Scotia and the June 30 running of the Queen's Plate in Toronto.

Three Boys Face Burglary, Fire Charges

Three boys arrested in the playground ship at Willows Park were charged Sunday with burglary and setting fires on consecutive weekends at the nearby Kiwanis pavilion.

Oak Bay police discovered a break-in at the concession building at Willows Beach at 3:30 a.m. and found boys aged 16, 17 and 18 under a tarpaulin in the sailing ship mockup about 100 feet away.

The tarp had been taken from the tearoom, where an attempt was made to set fire to its sign.

On Jan. 20 the pavilion was entered and a canvas canopy valued at $200 was burned.

Charges in juvenile and adult courts include breaking and entering with intent to steal, theft and setting fires. They were read to the accused by a justice of the peace pending court appearances.

Food and toys were stolen by youngsters who broke into Sidney Elementary School on Sunday.

Sidney RCMP said two boys aged 9 and 11 were caught running from the school shortly before noon. A window had been broken.

At Glen Lake Elementary School several teachers' desks were rifled after entry to the school was gained between late Friday and Sunday morning, also by means of a window.

Minor school supplies and cookies were stolen in a weekend break-in at Metchosin elementary school, police reported.

EX-SYMPHONY OFFICIAL SUES

Former manager Jean Hunter has filed a suit against the Victoria Symphony Society.

She seeks damages for wrongful dismissal last November and for breach of contract.

The society's lawyer is R.T. Taylor of Victoria while Hunter will be represented by a Vancouver firm. The case is not expected to be heard until the spring.

Carr Art To Tour Europe

An exhibition of Emily Carr paintings will tour London, Paris and Brussels this summer as part of the provincial government program of sending B.C. artists' works abroad, Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said today.

The over-all collection of more than 40 of her most important works is being brought together from the Vancouver Art Gallery and the Provincial Archives.

The exhibition opens at Canada House in London July 16. The Paris and Brussels dates have not yet been set.

The works will be shown in the Canadian embassies in the two continental cities.

Crash Victim 'Fair'

Norman Liimatta, 1504 Oakland, is in the intensive care unit suffering paralysis on one side. He received a spinal injury in the three-vehicle crash at Cook and Johnson.

Janice Campbell, 18, of 1146 Leonard was killed.

Robert Cheeke, 17, of 1664 Burton has been charged with dangerous driving.

A spokesman said six persons including Cheeke were in a panel truck being driven north on Cook when it was in collision with two cars eastbound on one-way Johnson Street.

Head-On Highlands Meeting

Neighbors from the Highlands will meet head-to-head Tuesday night in a battle to decide the future of the wild and sprawling area northwest of the city.

At issue is a proposed bylaw change that would remove a 45-acre subdivision freeze in effect since 1973.

The Capital Regional District's proposal would permit 10-acre lot sizes in most areas while allowing residential development in areas covered by Willis Point and Langford fire departments. The freeze would remain along the steep, wooded shoreline on Saanich Inlet.

Regional board chairman Murray Glazier says the freeze is an interim measure that should be lifted and replaced with a land-use plan for the entire area.

But any thoughts that such a move would be simple ended last year when Langford director Ed Lubick held a series of meetings with residents and invited their opinions.

Lubick was swamped with briefs which he says fall into two distinct and opposed groups.

Half of those who wrote to him supported the proposed re-zoning, saying that the 45-acre minimum infringes on their rights to do what they want with their land.

Others argue that the unique close-to-nature atmosphere of the Highlands will be destroyed if the freeze is lifted.

Highlands resident Christina Rainey is one of those who wants to see the existing bylaw removed.

Rainey said she and some others in the area have been placed in financial hardship because of the 45-acre requirement.

"It may be nice for people to drive by and look at the scenery here, but there are people like me who stand to lose everything so they can have that privilege.

"I have a court judgment against me that gives me until July 10 to come up with $32,000 or lose the property, but because of the freeze no one will buy."

On the other side of the coin are Highland homeowners like Bob McMinn, who says that if the freeze is lifted Greater Victoria will have missed its last chance to preserve a natural area close to the city.

In a brief entitled A City Forest for British Columbia's Capital Region McMinn urges the government to look overseas before deciding how the Highlands should be developed.

McMinn points to Oslo, Norway, where a large forested area has been preserved near to the city.

Oslo's Municipal Forest is a tremendous recreational area, he says, and the Highlands has the potential to become something similar.

He says it is urgent to preserve the 45-acre freeze because, if nothing else, it keeps the options open, allowing time for an in-depth study.

"The Highlands presents a unique opportunity as a Capital Region recreational area because it is a large (15,000 acres), beautiful, rugged, variable and largely unspoiled area, and is for the most part within the 10-mile circle of downtown Victoria."

But Rainey says that most of the large acreage in the area is privately held and people just don't have access to the recreational forest that exists now.

"I question how many people have been able to use the Highlands for recreation up to this point," she says.

McMinn agrees that access may be a problem now, but points to the Western Communtiy Official Settlement Plan, which calls for the establishment of trail right-of-ways in the area.

"If only the politicians would get on with the job of implementing what they've already started," he said.

McMinn also added that he's sympathetic to the situation of Rainey and others in the district who are in financial difficulty because of the freeze.

But he says the government should look at ways to solve the individual problems and not create other problems by a sweeping rezoning.

"It's tragic to let the opportunity that we have here wither away simply because we're not being imaginative enough to get at the real problem of the hardship cases."

On Getting Along with a Newspaper

A NEWSPAPER IS ONE of the accompaniments of daily living, to be taken no less for granted by its readers than sunrise or sunset. It is comfortably there, with its news and editorials, its features and its advertising. Yet this familiar friend has a way of becoming a daunting stranger when it must be approached for one reason or another by you the public.

That's too bad. It is a condition that can lead to misunderstanding, hurt feelings, and occasionally anger. Certainly part of the blame must go to the newspaper. The men and women who work on it, saddled as they are with the task of what someone has described as producing a daily miracle, are much too busy to explain themselves or their medium.

As a rover scout detached from the day-to-day scramble of getting out a paper, I'm under no such handicap. So today, let me fill you in on a few of the things you should know about your newspaper.

First for the basics:

Four main departments contribute to the making of a paper. These are the mechanical department, in which I lump a number of highly-complex skills, the circulation which looks to distribution, the advertising department which conveys commercial messages for a price, and the news.

A cardinal rule of every well-regulated newspaper is that advertising must never masquerade as news. The news columns are guarded jealously against commercial intrusion. They are not for sale.

Once in a while, this leads to heart-burning on the part of some advertiser who feels that his purchase of advertising space should confer special privilege in the presentation or even the suppression of a news item.

But where the news is concerned, no special privilege can be permitted to exist. So firmly held is this tenet by newspapermen that one publisher of the Times who was nabbed on a speeding charge insisted that the fact, and his name, appear in the court news.

Sooner or later, the time will arrive when you figure in some newsworthy occasion. You will then be approached, either by telephone or in person by a reporter who will ask questions and note down at least some of your answers. When it comes to dealing with reporters many people are miserably inept.

They talk too much, or not enough. They are repetitive, woefully vague, and anything but accurate in their statements.

Lacking the gift of second sight, the reporter must accept your words as gospel. As you tell it, so will it appear in print. Don't be panicked or flustered by the fact that someone is taking down what you say. Think before you speak . . . and get it right.

The tossed-off utterance has a startling and dismaying trick of acquiring new dimensions when it is translated into cold print. In my experience, the pained bleat, "I was misquoted!" rarely indicates that the reporter has erred. Far more commonly, it leads to the suspicion that the subject has simply let his mouth run away with him . . . to his later regret.

Another point to remember in any dealings with the press is that your daily newspaper is constantly and desperately short of space. It must reduce the city's and the world's news to a few pages. The job can only be brought off by compression of the most ruthless sort.

You have, we will suppose, labored long and hard over a speech. A reporter turns up at the meeting, and next day his account is in the paper. Your fine flourishes, your detailed explanations, have been shorn away. Only the bare bones of your presentation makes it into print.

Compression — the process by which you squeeze a big, fluffy snowball into a hard, compact one — has got in its licks.

But if you have a club announcement or a notice of a meeting to submit to your newspaper, never let a pardonable zeal for compression lure you into omitting necessary information. If you're a secretary with notices to send in on a regular basis, make yourself a check-list. Where is the meeting to be held? At precisely what time? On what date? Who will be the speaker? Have you spelled his name correctly, and what are his initials.?

Finally, keep in mind that a newspaper is the better for having strong opinions, which are kept carefully segregated from the news. You will find what a newspaper believes and holds by in its editorials, on a page which also carries opinion pieces of various sorts, and probably a cartoon.

For a newspaper, if it is to do its job properly, must be more than a purveyor of news. It must be prepared to speak its mind even though to do so may place it in jeopardy. A sharp-eyed press is your watchdog . . . and where would you be without it?

AWED BY IT ALL: Ottawa Brookfield guard Doug Nelson (15) appears over-awed as Sudbury Lockerby players Frank Falcioni (next to Nelson) and Illario Pasquale (4) try to wrestle ball from Brookfield's Errol Nelson during Oakleaf Classic final at McKinnon Gym Sunday. Brookfield's Pat Archibald (44) awaits developments. Lockerby won 68-67 thriller on basket by Pasquale in last five seconds. (Irving Strickland photo).

SCORES WINNER IN OAKLEAF CLASSIC ON SECOND CHANCE

Lockerby Hails Pasquale

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

You don't often get a second chance but Illario Pasquale did Sunday and made it count.

Pasquale, voted the outstanding player in the third annual Oakleaf Classic high school basketball tournament, scored the winning basket with five seconds left to give Lockerby Vikings of Sudbury a 68-67 victory over Ottawa Brookfield in the championship final at UVic's McKinnon gym.

Twelve seconds earlier Pasquale, a 5-foot-11 bundle of dynamite who led both teams with 31 points, missed an outside shot and watched as Brookfield's Errol Nelson and Lockerby's Doug Church tied each other up on the rebound for a jump ball.

Nelson won the jump but the ball bounded beyond everyone's reach toward the sidelines and Pasquale corralled it. He drove within 15 feet of the basket and sank the winner.

The play capped a see-saw affair in which the lead changed hands five times with Lockerby blowing a 15-point third-quarter bulge to the taller Brookfield squad.

The victory was Lockerby's 18th against one loss and brought the Vikings their fourth tournament title this season.

Pasquale, an 18-year-old grade 13 student, revealed after the game he may enrol at UVic next fall. One of eight Lockerby players due to graduate, he approached UVic coach Ken Shields in Sudbury last summer. He is also considering Laurentian University in his home town.

"The choice, of course, is up to him," Shields said Sunday. "I can't make overtures toward him and I don't intend to try to steal him from Laurentian if that's where he decides to go. But he has a great ability to analyse plays and he'd be a logical replacement for Robbie Parris."

Parris, an all-star guard in the Canada West conference, ends a five-year career at UVic this spring.

Pasquale also was named to the tournament all-star team along with Nelson, Wayne Andrews of Oak Bay, Al Tait of Richmond, Bob Tassone of Lockerby and Bruce Pringle, a 6-foot-9 centre from Brookfield.

Viscount Bennett of Calgary was voted the most sportsmanlike team.

The final was the day's third thriller. The host Oak Bay Bays hung on for a 55-53 decision over Vancouver College for third place while Nanaimo Islanders, last year's Oakleaf winners, edged Richmond Colts 77-76 to take the consolation title. Viscount Bennett finished third in the losers' bracket with a 79-50 win over Mt. Douglas Rams.

Saturday, Lockerby beat Vancouver College 88-57 and Brookfield downed Oak Bay 86-72 in championship semi-finals. Richmond defeated Mt. Doug 79-58 and Nanaimo whipped Bennett 103-77 in the losers' bracket.

Bruin Ship Foundering; All-Star Side Complete

GARY UNGER
. . . 370th career goal

The Canadian Press

The good ship Bruin, its crew decimated by injuries, has developed a pronounced list. But skipper Don Cherry isn't about to abandon ship.

"We're on a long voyage," the National Hockey League coach said after watching Boston drop its seventh game in its last nine outings — a 5-3 setback at the hands of Los Angeles Kings. "We've run into . . . I don't know what. We've lost a few battles, but the war isn't over. The troops will be back."

Noting the injuries and the Bruins' string of bad luck on scoring opportunities — they hit the post four times while trailing 3-1 — Cherry also took notice of boos from the restless fans.

"An awful lot of people are jumping off the bandwagon now," he said. "There'll be a few broken ankles before we're through, but they'll be back jumping on.

Elsewhere Sunday, the surprising Washington Capitals remained unbeaten in their last five games, tying Toronto Maple Leafs 2-2. Minnesota North Stars surprised Buffalo Sabres 3-1, while Atlanta Flames blasted Detroit Red Wings and St. Louis Blues rocked Chicago Black Hawks by identical 7-2 scores.

At Landover, Md., the Capitals lost their bid for five consecutive victories when Lorne Stamler scored for the Leafs midway through the final period to pull Toronto into the 2-2 tie.

A pair of virtual unknowns — Mike Zuke and Tony Currie — each scored the first two goals of their NHL careers to pace the Blues, while veteran centre Garry Unger, playing in his 854th consecutive game, collected his 370th career goal and added three assists for the winners.

Meanwhile, the National Hockey League's top scoring Trottier line and seven players from the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens will form the nucleus of Team NHL against the Soviet national squad for the Challenge Cup.

General manager Bill Torrey of Team NHL announced a 32-man lineup.

The roster will be cut to 25 players after next weekend's 16-game regular schedule is completed.

The three-game series between Team NHL and the Soviet Union opens in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 8, with the second and third games, also on Garden ice, Feb. 10 and 11.

The fans picked centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers and wingers Steve Shutt and Guy Lafleur of the Canadiens as their No. 1 line. All-stars Larry Robinson of Montreal and Denis Potvin of the Islanders were the defensive selections along with Tony Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks in goal.

Team NHL coach Scotty Bowman, who has coached the Canadiens to three straight Stanley Cups, is committed to start the fans' team except for the goalie for only one line shift in the opening game.

Joining Esposito in goal were Ken Dryden of Canadiens, Glenn Resch of Islanders and Gerry Cheevers of Boston Bruins.

In addition to Shutt, who is recovering from a broken wrist, other left wingers were Clark Gillies of the Islanders, Bob Gainey of Montreal, Don Marcotte and Rick Middleton of the Bruins and Bill Barber of the Flyers.

At centre were Bryan Trottier of the Islanders, Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles Kings, Darryl Sittler of Toronto Maple Leafs, Ulf Nilsson of New York Rangers and Gil Perreault of Buffalo Sabres.

Serge Savard and Guy Lapointe join Robinson as the big three of Montreal's defence. Potvin is recovering from a shoulder separation.

Other defencemen were Borje Salming and Ian Turnbull of Toronto, Barry Beck of Colorado Rockies, Jim Schoenfeld of Buffalo, Gary Sargent of Minnesota North Stars and Bob Picard of Washington Capitals.

Cats Display Spirit In Times of Trouble

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Victoria Cougars enjoyed better weeks than the last one but the Western Hockey League team, finishing it off with a 4-4 tie Saturday against the Portland Winter Hawks, has to be admired.

It was a week in which the Cougars showed, above all else, they have character.

Playing four games in five days, they managed only two ties while losing a pair of two-goal decisions — both against the West Division-leading Hawks.

Not much to hoot about.

But it was their performances, rather than the record, that showed their spunk. Down to only two regular defencemen for three of the games, the Cougars, with a break here or there, could have won at least three if not all four of last week's outings.

In each game, the survivors on defence, getting surprisingly strong support from a pair of youngsters from Victoria's farm club in Nanaimo, played themselves into exhaustion. There also was extra physical strain on the forwards, and they, too, responded.

All dug down to give coach Jack Shupe their best. That might have been noticed if you watched the Cougars in the four games. Less evident, but also prevalent, was an emotional response.

With the ranks thinned because of injuries to five regulars, it is not easy to play with enthusiasm as well as caution. Normally, when there are 18 others on the bench, players retaliate to punches or other challenges from the opposition without hesitation.

The Cougars, especially defencemen, couldn't do that. The three-man defence of Mark Robinson, 18, Tony Feltrin, 17, and farmhand Ryan McAdams, 17, had to remember any prolonged absence would overburden the active. Bolstered in the week's first two games by 16-year-old Len Dawes of Nanaimo, they had to retreat indiscreetly from penalty-taking situations.

"(Coach) Shupe didn't have to tell us," said Feltrin. "We all knew we had to stick around. Those were four of the toughest games I ever played, but the hardest thing was to back off and not retaliate."

The intelligence of Shupe's troops, as witnessed in all four games last week, came right from the top drawer.

The Hawks issued numerous physical challenges Saturday and Victoria's emotions were further taxed by referee Paul Corcoran's inconsistency. The Cougars handled it magnificently.

Sparked by Gary Lupul's firebrand skating, there was inspired play by the forwards. It was Lupul who sparked Victoria's come-from-behind charge at Memorial Arena with two goals and an assist.

Trailing 4-2 with less than five minutes remaining, Cougars salvaged the split when he scored his 34th goal at 15:15 and then came back two minutes later on a brilliant rush to set up Randy Irving's game-salvaging goal.

Offence Key In Pro Bowl

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With people like Earl Campbell, Terry Bradshaw, Lynn Swann, Walter Payton, Roger Staubach and Harold Carmichael in the game, tonight's Pro Bowl would figure to be a wild and crazy offensive show.

But that line of thinking doesn't take into account the defensive stars in the annual clash between the National Football League all-stars.

When the American Conference has Campbell carrying the ball, or Bradshaw passing to Swann, his favorite receiver, they'll have to contend with National Conference defenders like Bill Bergey, Jack Youngblood, Al Baker and Cliff Harris.

And when Payton, Staubach and Carmichael are trying to move the NFC offence, they'll be looking at an AFC defence that includes Lyle Alzado, Joe Greene, Randy Gradishar and Louis Wright.

Rules dictate that the defence must always be in a 4-3-4 set, play a man-for-man with a free safety, and cannot blitz unless the situation is third down and less than three yards to go.

That, of course, means the respective offences won't have to worry about making a lot of adjustments, and that the quarterbacks can essentially forget about being blitzed.

"That doesn't exactly mean the quarterback's in a rocking chair," said Staubach. "But it does give you one less thing to worry about."

Although a week is not enough time to install many fancy plays, both AFC coach Chuck Fairbanks and the NFC's Bud Grant said they expect the game to be wide open.

"With not much time to work out together, we'll have to keep things somewhat limited," Fairbanks said. "But we'll be flexible enough to put on a show. It makes it nice that we don't have to prepare for every possible defence."

Grant commented: "With the restrictions on the defence and all the high-powered backs and receivers, it may well be a high-scoring game."

Skillings, Carlisle Rinks Advance to Coast Finals

LAKE COWICHAN — Steve Skillings of Victoria Curling Club skipped his rink to a third straight appearance in the Pacific Coast Curling Association playoffs here Sunday with a 10-4 victory over George Ziolkowski of Campbell River in the "B" final of the eight-rink Island men's playoff.

Ivan Carlisle of Port Alberni earned the other Island berth in the PCCA event at Duncan, starting Friday, with a 6-4 victory over Ziolkowski in the "A" final Saturday night.

Carlisle won three straight games. He defeated Victoria's Bob Gallaugher 7-6 in an extra end in his first match and downed Skillings 10-6 in the second on the strength of a big four ender in the eighth and a steal of two in the ninth.

Skillings took the long road but he came through handily. He eliminated clubmate Keith Dagg 7-4 Saturday night, then defeated Steve Williams of Duncan for a second time in the double-knockout event, 8-5, Sunday, but not before a full-fledged scare.

Skillings led 5-2 after seven ends and appeared to have things well in hand. But Williams had other ideas. The youthful Duncan skip scored a single on the eighth and then stole successive singles on the ninth and 10th ends to tie the score 5-5 and force an extra end.

However any chance he might have had on the extra end disappeared when a sweeper burned his final stone as he was attempting to duck behind cover with Skillings having three counters at the time.

However, even if the rock hadn't been burned, it appeared that Williams would have wrecked on the rock he was trying to hide behind.

Skillings earlier had beaten Williams 8-5 in his first game.

In the "B" final, Skillings had little trouble with Ziolkowski after the third end. With the score tied 2-2, Skillings scored three on the fourth, gave up one on the fifth, came back with a deuce on the sixth, gave up another single on the seventh and then got a single in the eighth to lead 8-4.

A steal of two on the ninth ended matters for Giolkowski who unfortunately ended up as a loser in both finals.

Of the other Victoria rinks, Dagg, who had qualified for the PCCA last year, was ousted by Skillings, while Bob Gallaugher of Playland, 1976 PCCA qualifier, went out in two games, both by one rock. Jack Anderson of Juan de Fuca also lost his first two games.

Skillings, in his first PCCA try in 1977, went to both "A" and "B" finals before being eliminated. Last year, when he qualified out of the Totem, he went out in two straight games.

For Carlisle, a former prairie curler, it will be his first try in the PCCA final.

NIRMAL TO STAY AS IRISH COACH

Nirmal Dillon will coach Victoria Shamrocks of the Western Lacrosse Association for a fourth straight year, general manager Leon Hall has announced.

"Naturally, we are quite satisfied with Dillon's performance," said Hall, "and are pleased to have him back."

Dillon led the Shamrocks to two first-place finishes and one second in his three years at the helm.

In the first two years, Shamrocks, who finished first and second, lost to Vancouver Burrards both times in the playoffs. Last season Shamrocks won the league title and then went on to the Mann Cup final in Peterborough, where they lost in seven games.

The Mann Cup final will be in the west this year and Hall is hopeful that the Shamrocks can repeat their success of last season.

Armstrong, Saxbee Qualify

ABBOTSFORD, B.C. (CP) — Jim Armstrong needed an extra end Sunday to defeat Wayne Saxbee of Abbotsford 8-7 and win the the Fraser Valley zone curling championship.

Saxbee came back later in the day to defeat Merv McMartin of South Delta 8-1 to advance as the second qualifier to the Pacific Coast Curling Association finals next weekend in Duncan.

In play Saturday, Armstrong eliminated Lorne Rustad of New Westminster 8-2 and Saxbee defeated Ken Read of North Delta 10-8.

Stenmark Ski Reign Ends

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, West Germany (AP) — The three-year reign of World Cup ski champion Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden apparently has come to an end, and the heir apparent is a young Swiss who admits he is not the best skier in the world.

Peter Luescher of Switzerland won the World Cup slalom race Sunday and, along with his 16th in the previous day's downhill race, was awarded the meet's combined title. Luescher now has 173 World Cup points over all, compared with 135 for Stenmark.

Stenmark, who has won the over-all title the last three years, can accumulate no more than 150 points from slalom and giant slalom finishes under rules adopted for this season. He staunchly refuses to ski downhill, so he can gain no combined or downhill points.

"Even if I am leading the World Cup standings, I don't think I am the best skier in the world," the 23-year-old Luescher said. "But I consider myself among the top."

Luescher finished in one minute, 26.11 seconds over the two runs, four one-hundredths of a second faster than Phil Mahre of White Pass, Wash. With his best slalom finish of the season and an 18th in Saturday's downhill, Mahre took the silver medal in the combined for the Garmisch meet and moved into fourth spot in the over-all standings with 106 points.

Peter Popangelov of Bulgaria was third in Sunday's slalom in 1:26.26, followed by Stenmark in 1:26.76 and Piero Gros of Italy in 1:27.10.

Leafs Trim Duncan Club

Esquimalt Maple Leafs strengthened their hold on first place in the South Island Big Six Hockey League Sunday with an 11-5 victory over Duncan Blades at Duncan.

Leafs lead second-place Buckaroos by 12 points but Buckaroos have four games in hand.

Gene Wrigglesworth scored two for the Blades.

LONG REACH of Gerry Bowes (9) helped Edmonton player score first of two goals in "D" Division final in Western Canada Oldtimers' hockey tournament. Also reaching are clubmates George Ede (10) and Bill Mitchell (13) as Vernon goalie Don Phillips tries to cover up. Edmonton won 7-5 at Memorial Arena.

Oldtimers' Tournament A Financial Success

The skaters passed artistic excellence in bygone years, so financial success may have been more important to the organizing committee of the third annual Western Canada oldtimers' hockey tournament.

In that regard, they came up smiling as the three-day, 68-team show wound up Sunday at Memorial Arena.

East Kootenay All-Stars, competing for the first time, were the big winners on the ice while Saskatchewan and Alberta teams shared remaining honors.

Behind the scenes, a look of satisfaction creased Frank Hegyi's face.

"The figures were assembled hastily and are unofficial," said the tournament chairman and president of the sponsoring South Vancouver Island Minor Hockey Association, "but it looks like we made it into the black.

"It won't be a huge profit, but it will be enough to get us started on next year's national tournament."

The Canadian Oldtimers' Hockey Association won't make a decision until March, but it now appears almost certain that Victoria's bid to host the 1980 nationals will be accepted. For one thing, the teams want it played here.

"Many teams are quite anxious. So much so, in fact, that several have promised to write COHA headquarters in Peterborough on our behalf," said Hegyi.

Fan support at the weekend was more than double last year's attendance here. Exact attendance figures were not available, but Hegyi said gate receipts were enough to cover cost of renting the seven district arenas used this year.

Rink rentals had been estimated at $12,000.

"The part the pleases me," added Hegyi, "is that we didn't go looking for handouts. We paid commercial rates for the ice and that means every community benefitted."

East Kootenay captured the main event — the "A" division title — by defeating Spokane 2-0 in the final before about 1,200 fans. Dick Vincent scored at 15:43 of the third period to break a scoreless deadlock and Charlie Passmore counted the insurance tally less than two minutes later.

Spokane was bolstered by several players from the Kootenays.

A pair of goals by Pinky McDonald sparked Calgary Vikings to a 5-3 victory over Nanaimo and the "B" championship. Nanaimo, getting two goals from Dave Griff and one from Doug Anderson, was runnerup to Drumheller in the "A" final last year.

Alberta teams also picked off the next two divisions. Wetaskiwin, getting four goals from Harold Macilorski, tripped Stonewall, Man., 8-4 in the "C" finale while CFB Edmonton edged Vernon 7-5 in the "D" playoff.

Things Normal For Islanders

Juan de Fuca Gulls and Lake Cowichan Bairds got their chance at Kerry Park Islanders on the weekend and the results were normal.

Kerry Park lost two games in the South Island Junior B Hockey League.

The Gulls downed the Islanders 6-4 on Saturday and Lake Cowichan Bairds did the honors at Lake Cowichan, Sunday, 13-6.

Gulls led 2-1 after one period and 5-3 after two. Ross Anderson scored three goals.

On Sunday before a good crowd of 347, Bairds were held to a 4-3 edge after one period, but broke out to go ahead 8-4 after two.

DataTech Hobbled By Rash of Injuries

YAKIMA — Injuries continued to plague Victoria DataTech as the senior "A" men's basketball team dropped a weekend doubleheader to Yakima City.

Billy Loos suffered an ankle injury at a crucial point in a 112-106 defeat Saturday and DataTech could only field eight players for Sunday's Northwest International Basketball League encounter and suffered a 112-102 setback.

A tremendous rally in the final four minutes brought DataTech back from a 16-point deficit Saturday but Loos was injured just after he scored on a driving layup that brought Victoria to within two points with 56 seconds remaining.

Loos, the club's second highest scorer and rebounder, was taken to hospital immediately following the game and x-rays revealed a bad sprain. The six-four forward, who hadn't missed a game in three years of college play, said he hopes to be back in the lineup this weekend when DataTech hosts defending champion Seattle Dynasties at Central Junior High School.

The injury to Loos and a offical's miscall — one called DataTech ball while the other called Yakima ball — helped Yakima regain the competitive edge. While the DataTech players went to offense Yakima was given the ball and scored an easy layup to make it 110-106.

DataTech, which has lost five straight games, only took nine players on the roadtrip because Jim Duddridge (heel) and Brent Mullins (chest) are out with injuries, Ken Shields and Dave Morgan were busy with coaching assignments and Brian MacKenzie was attending a wedding.

Mike Gains and reserve Brian Brumwell filled in well for the missing Loos Sunday and sparked DataTech to a 50-49 lead at the half. But a superlative shooting performance by Stan Nybo turned the game around for Yakima.

CAUTHEN WINLESS STREAK HITS 105

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Steve Cauthen was the toast of the horse racing world in 1977, then enhanced his reputation last year by riding Triple Crown winner Affirmed.

But the young jockey's magic has disappeared in 1979, and racing's former "Wonder Kid" may be wondering if he'll ever visit the winner's circle again.

Cauthen, 18, hasn't ridden a winner in his last 105 races. Sunday at Santa Anita, he went to the post eight times, and his best finish was third aboard Copelino in the second race. Even then, Cauthen's mount got help from the racing stewards, who disqualified third-place finisher Marsos down to fifth, moving Copelino up from fourth.

Cauthen has now gone 20 racing days without a winner, and two losses came aboard Affirmed in events where the Triple Crown winner went off a heavy favorite.

Seeking to snap the dry spell, Cauthen has made three agent changes in the past week, but his luck hasn't changed and he will try again Wednesday.

Martin Wins Tartan

A rink skipped by Flora Martin of Victoria Curling Club captured "A" event honors Sunday in the 10th annual Tartan women's bonspiel at the Racquet Club of Victoria.

The Martin foursome defeated the Oak Bay quartet of Lenore Dyke 8-7 in the final, scoring the tie-breaking point in the 10th end.

Fernande Hawkes of the Racquet Club took "B" event with a 9-1 victory over the Tere Batters rink of the Racquet Club, skipped by Ruby Niemeyer, while two University of British Columbia rinks captured "C" and "D" events.

UVic Boosts Lead

University of Victoria Vikettes took a firmer grasp on first place in the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association Saturday with a 4-2 victory over second-place Mariners.

Oak Bay and Sandpipers battled to a 1-1 tie in another first division match.

In the second division, Hobbits edged Rebels Red 3-2, Evergreens blanked Sanderlings 2-0, Sailors edged Castaways 3-2 and Cowichan defeated Rebels Gold 3-0.

A two-goal scorer for Hobbits was Louise Herlinveaux.

Dunsmuir Rebounds

CHILLIWACK — Dunsmuir High School of Victoria lost its first game to Chilliwack 64-32 in a four-team high school boys' basketball tournament here on the weekend but bounced back to take consolation honors with a 66-58 victory over Aldergrove.

Dean St. Pierre of Dunsmuir was named to the all-star team. Chilliwack won the tournament with a 68-65 win over Mout High School.

Sandy is Back

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hall-of-Fame pitcher Sandy Koufax, 43, who last wore a Los Angeles Dodgers uniform in 1966, will go to spring training with the baseball team this year as a pitching instructor.

Esquimalt Skaters Earn Major Honors

FORT ST. JOHN — Esquimalt contestants Brenda Shields and Wilson Louie capped outstanding seasons by collecting major honors at the British Columbia speedskating championships during the weekend.

Shields, who shared the juvenile girls' over-all title at this meet with Lauri Ljuden of Fort St. John, was selected by the provincial speedskating association as B.C. skater-of-the-year, making it three times in the last five years that a member of the Esquimalt Speedskating Club has earned that award.

Louie, competing in the junior men's division, was one of three contestants who broke provincial records in all four of their events while skating to over-all titles.

Also setting four marks as skaters took advantage of near-perfect weather and ice conditions were John Warren of Prince George, winner of the senior men's championship, and Mission's Andrew Donatelli, who took the bantam boys' crown.

On his way to a sweep of the senior men's 500, 1,500, 3,000 and 5,000-metre events, Warren trimmed 21 seconds off the 5,000 record with a clocking of 10 minutes, 52.3 seconds.

The Fort St. John Speedskating Club, led by the Johnson family, won the team championship with 294 points. Prince George was second with 168 and Dawson Creek third with 152.

Among other Esquimalt athletes, Rod Phillips won the junior men's Olympic event, Keith Robinson was third over-all in the junior section and Gary Elander was second in the junior division.

Draw Lifts Wests Closer to Lead

Victoria West moved to within two points of Victoria Athletics in the First Division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League Sunday while UVic Vikings strengthened their hold on fourth place.

Wests played to a 1-1 tie with Nanaimo City at Heywood Avenue Park and the Vikings edged Duncan Selects 3-2 at Topaz Park.

On Saturday, Gorge moved into fifth place, one point ahead of Nanaimo United with a 2-0 victory over Oak Bay at Royal Athletic Park.

Robbie Williams gave Wests a 1-0 lead at 55 minutes against Nanaimo City, but the visitors responded with the equalizer from Paul Butler at 87 minutes, just three minutes from time.

Mark Yawney scored the other two goals for the Vikings at 44 and 51 minutes. Ed Paver got the first goal for Selects at 49 minutes and Ben Elwell the second and tying goal at 72 minutes.

FUZZY ZOELLER

Zoeller's April Schedule Complicated by First Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller had arranged his playing schedule carefully this year, keeping clear the two middle weeks of April.

"My wife's expecting our first child in the middle of April," Zoeller said. "That's the most exciting, best thing that's ever happened to me.

"I'm committed for everything up until then, but I had arranged it to be home when she's due. Now, it looks like I won't be there."

His first career victory on the Professional Golfers Association tour came in wind, rain, a few flurries of snow, cold and hail Sunday at the San Diego Open. And it suddenly made him eligible for two of golf's premier events — the Masters and Tournament of Champions.

He has never before played in either and they come on consecutive weeks in the middle of April—"just about my wife's due date," Zoeller said.

Zoeller, 27, one of the game's longest hitters and more noted free spirits, started the day two shots in front of the pack, was three ahead most of the stormy day and eventually won by five after scoring a meaningless birdie on the final hole of the South course at Torrey Pines.

He finished with a round of par 72—one of only five scores at par or better in the brutal weather—and claimed $45,000 from the total purse of $250,000 with his 282 total, six under par.

Tom Watson, player-of-the-year the last two seasons, made his first start of 1979 a good one by sharing second place with Bill Kratzert, Artie McNickle and Wayne Levi. Levi had the day's best round, a 68, while McNickle shot 72 and Kratzert 74.

His victory, nailed down on a string of 11 pars, really hasn't hit home. But Zoeller said he is convinced it is "the second-most important thing that's happened to me."

Vikettes, Vikings Hoping That 'It's Our Turn Now'

Getting even will be the name of the game when UVic Vikings and Vikettes take on their counterparts from Simon Fraser University in a pair of exhibition basketball contests Tuesday night at UVic's McKinnon Gymnasium.

Both UVic teams lost to SFU in Burnaby before Christmas.

Tuesday's Viking-Clansmen matchup could be a dandy. Clansmen are rated third over-all in National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) District 1 and boast an explosive offence, usually ignited by Jay Triano, a 6-foot-4 sophomore forward who leads District 1 scorers and is fifth in the U.S. small-college division. He's contributing 26 points a game to his team's 90.9-points-a-game clip.

Triano, 6-foot-3 guard Tom Skirlak and 6-foot-10 freshman forward Steve Atkin are members of Canada's national team.

Clansmen, who split a pair of weekend games at Burnaby with the University of Alaska-Fairbanks, losing 84-64 Saturday after a 96-79 triumph Friday, are now 17-7 in NAIA competition.

Coach Ken Shields sees the game as one of the toughest to date for his Vikings, ranked third last week in the Canadian Interuniversity Athletic Union poll.

Home-owners!

Your attics are under-insulated and it's costing you money every day!

25% to 33% of your hard earned heat is lost if your attic is uninsulated (3" of insulation means you're 75% under-insulated). Climb up and take a look for yourself. Less than eight inches of insulation is below the level recommended by the insulating experts at B.C. Hydro and the Federal Office of Energy Conservation. At today's rising fuel prices you can't afford to be under-insulated.

K-19 BLOWN-IN INSULATION

K-19 blown cellulose insulation is ideally formulated for adding to your existing insulation or for fully insulating your home. It offers superior insulating qualities at a reasonable price. K-19 is blown into your walls and attic, without fuss or mess, from our truck. It flows into cracks and irregularities, assuring a uniform blanket to make your home more comfortable and pay for itself in fuel savings. Our expert crews can top up your existing insulation in a few short hours, making your home warmer in winter and cooler in summer. An estimator would be pleased to call at your home to determine the amount of Therm-Attic needed and to advice you on FEDERAL GOV'T GRANTS AND B.C. HYDRO FINANCING PLANS AVAILABLE.

DON'T FORGET THE WALLS

Yes, we do walls too . . . if your home is 17 or more years old chances are there is little, if any, insulation in your walls. A chilling thought — at today's home heating costs — an expensive and uncomfortable oversight. A phone call will bring an experienced estimator to determine the insulation your walls require to bring them up to B.C. Hydro recommended wall insulation levels. K-19 blown wall insulation can save hardearned heat. The Federal office of Energy Conservation states "houses built before 1945 lose 20 to 40% of their heat through the exterior walls". Act now and save.

Janitor Strike Closes Track

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Windsor Raceway officials were forced to cancel harness races Saturday night because of a strike by janitors.

The employees picketed the track, hampering matinee racing and forcing the cancellation of night racing.

It was the second time in three weeks the track had been closed because of a strike.

SWISS RIDER LEADS

Ashe Overpowered

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Top-seeded Jimmy Connors overpowered cunning Arthur Ashe 6-3, 6-4, 6-1 Sunday to win the United States indoor tennis championship.

The 26-year-old Connors earned his third title here in the last four years by beating the 10th-seeded Ashe. Connors was runner-up in the event in 1977.

It simply was a case of Connors' deep top-spin drives and cross-court placements overcoming the attempts of the 35-year-old Ashe to slow the pace with drop shots and moderate speed tactics.

Connors earned the $40,000 first prize in the week-long tournment with the loss of only one set, that to Roscoe Tanner in the semi-finals.

Ashe, who was a television tennis commentator in 1977, while recovering from foot surgery, battled his way back into the top 20 ranks last year, but he was no match for the ever-aggressive Connors.

This was the first time the two met on the court since 1975, when Ashe beat Connors in the final at Wimbledon. This was, however, Connors' fourth win in five matches against the native of Richmond, Va.

During the tournament week, Ashe ran through a tougher draw, eliminating three of the top six seeded players. Connors played only one of the first 10 seeds.

HOCKEY ON WAY OUT

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis University will drop its intercollegiate hockey program after this season because of financial woes.

BIBBY CAPTURES TITLE

CALGARY (CP) — David Bibby of University of Victoria won three events to take the men's all-round title at the University of Calgary invitational gymnastic competition Saturday.

Bibby won the floor exercises, rings and high-bar for a point total of 47.45. Calgary's Keith Erherdt was second with 45.25, and U of Alberta's James Hamilton had 44.05 for third.

University of Eastern Montana was the leading men's team with Calgary second, Alberta third and Victoria fourth.

Sandra Farley of Alberta, winner of the balance beam and uneven bars events, was the top female gymnast with 33.95 points.

Alberta women topped the team standings. Calgary was second and the University of British Columbia third.

Opening lead - queen of clubs.

I was playing with my son Mike in the final round of the National Life Masters Pairs when this deal came up. He opened third-hand with one spade and I responded four clubs! This unusual jump-response indicated the values for a raise to four spades and, at the same time, designated a singleton (possibly a void) in clubs.

There is no doubt in my mind that this singleton-showing device is an extremely valuable aid to accurate slam bidding. Many slams depend as much on distributional factors as on high cards, and the announcement of a singleton in a suit where partner has several losers is often a surefire key to a slam.

The convention unquestionably worked well here. After East doubled four clubs I bid four diamonds, indicating the ace, and Mike then bid four hearts, likewise showing the ace.

I could now do more than bid four spades — there is a limit to how many bids one can make with only two aces and no other high cards. But when Mike bid five hearts, identifying the A-K and probably heart length, my hand grew enormously in stature and I had no compunctions about jumping to six spades.

The slam proved easy to make. Mike ruffed one heart and two clubs in dummy, and in that way brought home twelve tricks for a score of 1,430 points.

Strangely enough, although the hand was played at 26 tables, ours was the only one where the slam was bid. But then again, maybe this wasn't so strange, because if you're a point-count hound you're unlikely to get to a slam when you have only 21 high-card points opposed to the opponents' 19.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, January 30
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): What occurs at clandestine meeting could have direct effect on you. Key is to be aware of options; refuse to be painted into corner. Exercise freedom of choice. Your position is stronger than surface view might indicate.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Accent on desire, friendship, contacts that could lead to a profitable business transaction. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure in scenario. Be ready for change, travel, special written material. Energetic associate comes up with some key answers.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Emphasis on results — room is made for you at more elevated position. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio figure prominently. Be diplomatic in any discussion of budget. Accept civic duty. It could mean much to you in various ways.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Gain indicated through special communication, advertising, publishing, long-range planning. See situations, people as they are, not merely as you would like them to be. You are able to define terms, to get credit long due.

LEO (July 23 - August 22): Emphasis on job at hand, basic service, completion of task, assignment. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Patience is an ally; be thorough, avoid sensationalism. Older individual will lend benefit of experience.

VIRGO (August 23 - Sept. 22): Emphasis on partnership, legal ties, matrimony. You learn what should be retained, what discarded. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Take time, don't rush decisions. You benefit by playing waiting game. Defer to judgment of one who does have your best interest at heart.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Accent on health, getting files in order, organizing game plan. You meet people, go places and have marvelous opportunity to express yourself in original manner. Leo, Scorpio, Aquarius persons figure in scenario.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): You break from restrictions — member of opposite sex expresses love. Speculation, the lively arts, showmanship, graphic illustrations are part of scenario. Cancer, Capricorn and Leo figure prominently. Yes, take a chance on — you!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): You get "running room." What seemed restriction may turn out to be a mere delay. You benefit now by expanding views, concepts. You need not be confined. You are on verge of breakthrough — you'll discover what is valuable — or otherwise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Emphasis on getting point across, delivering significant message. Study Sagittarius indications. You are going to gain access to privileged information. You're able now to piece together clues, trends and to come up with complete story.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): You learn more about money in relation to you — and how it gets that way. You obtain information which enables you to locate what had been missing, lost. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius figure prominently — and so does the number 5.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): You get what you want — know it, take care with what you request. Cycle high — judgment, intuition are on target. Stress confidence, creativity, independence. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio figure prominently. You will make contact that leads to gain, profit, personal satisfaction.

IF JANUARY 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are more conscious of your appearance than the average person. You have hearty sense of humor and a "good" appetite. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play key roles in your life. May well be your most important month of 1979, a year highlighting travel, self-expression, popularity, rebounding from emotional-financial setbacks. You are adaptable, artistic, unorthodox. A relationship "heats up" in February. You are on the road now to achievement. Blow to your pride was not fatal. You are being given chance to reach for brass ring, to be happier — and more financially responsible.

FUN WITH FIGURES

"A Math Club meeting, eh?" said Betty. "How many members do you have now?"

Gary thought a moment. "Well, if two of the girls were guys we'd have twice as many guys as girls," he replied.

"But, if two of the guys were girls we'd be equal."

Golden Globe for Jane Fonda

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jane Fonda, whose career suffered because of her opposition to the Vietnam war, was twice honored for a film on the subject at the Golden Globe awards ceremonies this weekend.

The Hollywood Foreign Press association named Miss Fonda best dramatic actress of 1978 for her portrayal of a young military wife in Coming Home. Along with John Travolta, she was also chosen World Film Favorite.

"I guess I'm back," Miss Fonda told a star-studded audience at the Beverly Hilton Saturday night. "So is Nixon. Only I'm getting paid and he isn't."

Jon Voight, who played the disillusioned and crippled Vietnam veteran who becomes Fonda's lover in Coming Home, won the award for best dramatic film actor award.

But Midnight Express, a film about a young American's brutal treatment in a Turkish prison, garnered the most awards. A surprise winner in the best dramatic film category, the movie also earned a best-screenplay citation for Oliver Stone, best original score for Giorgio Moroder and acting awards for three relative unknowns.

Brad Davis, who played the imprisoned dope trafficker, was honored for best film acting debut, as was Irene Miracle. John Hurt was chosen best supporting actor.

Michael Cimino was named best director for The Deer Hunter.

Warren Beatty took two awards in the musical or comedy categories — best actor and best film — for Heaven Can Wait, a fantasy about a professional football player's return to life after he is prematurely snatched from earth in a bicycle accident.

Beatty produced, co-directed and starred in the remake of Here Comes Mr. Jordan. Dyan Cannon, who played the neurotic wife of one of Beatty's reincarnations, was named best supporting film actress.

Ellen Burstyn of Same Time, Next Year and Maggie Smith of California Suite shared honors in the best comedy or musical film actress category.

Autumn Sonata, Ingmar Bergman's exploration of a complex mother-daughter relationship, was named best foreign film.

In television awards, the news-feature program 60 Minutes was named best dramatic series, but CBS had declined the award prior to its presentation. Taxi was chosen best comedy or musical series. Michael Moriarity and Rosemary Harris won dramatic actor and actress awards for their performances in Holocaust, a series about a Jewish family in Nazi Germany.

Robin Williams, who portrays the friendly extra-terrestrial boy next door on Mork and Mindy, was named best actor in a television musical or comedy series. Linda Lavin, a waitress in Alice, won the same award for women.

CHILD SURVIVES 70-FOOT FALL

TORONTO — A three-year-old boy was in "fair but improving condition," at hospital Sunday after falling 70 feet from his fifth floor apartment building hospital officials said.

Police said Elufeni Akinbode broke both legs and possibly sustained a back injury after falling from the balcony of his apartment building Saturday.

Investigators said the child's fall was cushioned by four inches of soft snow.

Police said the boy's mother reported she was in the laundry room on the ground floor when the fall occurred.

The mother told police she heard a noise outside the laundry room then looked out to see her son lying on the ground. Investigators have yet to determine how the child reached the apartment balcony.

Family Accepting Marriage to Gran

First anniversary for Mark, Ray

LOS ANGELES — After a year of marriage, 21-year-old Mark Goodman says his parents are "learning to accept the situation" and getting used to his new bride — his 78-year-old stepgrandmother, Ray.

"It's been one exciting year," Goodman said Sunday. "No regrets, that's for sure."

TULSA, Okla. — A penny saved may be a penny earned, but 50,000 pennies saved have wound up as 50,000 pennies lost.

The pennies belonged to John Atkins, who had delivered the $500 in coins — weighing 375 pounds — to his former wife as a child-support payment.

She was not amused.

Judge Robert Caldwell ruled on her complaint Friday, saying, "Pennies do not constitute legal tender according to federal statutes."

Atkins was ordered to give his former wife a $500 cashier's check. Mrs. Atkins' attorney was allowed to keep the $500 in pennies as his fee. His son collects coins and wanted the pennies.

TORONTO — Philippa Kilbourn's weekend wedding to Adriano Metelli was unusual, and not just because both the bride and her mother wore white.

Her mother, Mary Elizabeth Kilbourn was dressed in white clerical robes conducted the ceremony and conducted the ceremony as Rev. Kilbourn, Anglican priest.

Keeping it all in the family, Rev. Phillip Sawyer, Rev. Kilbourn's father, assisted in the ceremony and Philippa's brothers, Nicholas on trumpet, Michael on saxophone, helped provide the wedding music. The bride's sister, Hilary, was one of the two official witnesses.

Rev. Kilbourn said in an interview after the ceremony that she has conducted about 35 wedding ceremonies since she was ordained in December.

BOSTON — Constantin Patsalas, a choreographer and soloist with the National Ballet of Canada, was chosen as the Boston Ballet choreographers' showcase winner in an international contest.

The Canadian, a native of Greece, won the competition's $5,000 prize and an especially commissioned sculpture with a piece entitled Piano Concerto, which had its world premiere at John Hancock Hall Saturday. Patsalas has been with the National Ballet since 1972.

WASHINGTON — No ruffles. No flourishes. Not even a diehard supporter greeted Richard Nixon as he returned to Washington for a visit evoking memories of his greatest triumph and greatest defeat.

The former president returns to the White House tonight for the first time since he resigned the U.S. presidency four years ago in the Watergate scandal.

At the invitation of President Carter, Nixon will attend a state dinner honoring Chinese Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, leader of the country Nixon courted, help forge ties that Carter confirmed by extending diplomatic recognition.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — A man who has played blackjack casually for 40 years aced out six other finalists to win first prize in the $50,000 World Championship of Blackjack.

As a packed house watched the two-hour televised contest Sunday at the Sahara Hotel, Denton Miller, 61, of Denver surged into the lead with two consecutive blackjacks — ace and face cards — with 23 minutes to play.

His winnings of $3,720 far out-distanced second place Norman Hem of Singapore, who won $1,132. Each of the seven players started the final round with $500.

"I stayed with my strategy all the way," Miller said later. "I wanted to get out in front early and pull away as fast as I could. But I had some luck. Those two blackjacks were the luckiest break of the game."

Rites Set For City Archivist

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Fairfield United Church for Dr. Willard Ireland who died Saturday at his Victoria home.

The former provincial librarian and archivisit was well known for his popularization of provincial history.

He was recently awarded honorary doctorates from the University of Victoria and the University of British Columbia.

Born the son of a Methodist minister in Vancouver 65 years ago, he was educated in various B.C. schools, graduating from Victoria High School and receiving his bachelor of arts degree in 1933 from UBC.

He received his master of arts degree from the University of Toronto in 1935 and did research work in London and Washington in 1937.

He taught at South Burnaby High School before becoming provincial archivist in 1940. He served with the Royal Canadian Air Force from 1942 to 1945.

Ireland held office in library and historical associations and was past-president of the B.C. Library Association, Canadian Library Association and the B.C. Historical Association.

He was a member of UVic's board of governors, being associated with the university since its days as Victoria College.

He was honorary secretary of the B.C. Centennial Committee from 1956 to 1959 and in 1961 served on the federal Royal Commission on Government Organization.

His wife, Grovena, said he was an active layman in the United Church and spent his life trying to teach and help others to know Jesus Christ.

Ireland is also survived by three children, Ruth Gibson of Courtenay, Robert Ireland of Toronto and Velma Larson of Langley, and seven grandchildren.

Council On Family Meets

Jo Dixon was elected president of the B.C. Council for the Family, Capital Region Branch, at the group's first annual meeting in Metropolitan United Church.

Others elected are membership secretary Bev Faulks; community relations, Michael Nation; members-at-large Carole McBride, Ella Webb, Gelinda Tolman, Ann Hyggen, Jean Vantreight, Harold Moist, David Nordstrom and Elsie Stapleford.

Guest speaker Dr. Howard Biddulph, vice-president of the B.C. Council for the Family, said the most serious current family problems are divorce, violence, crime, alcoholism and family breakup.

He said the council is preparing preventive programs and some of the courses that will be available to interested groups are on marriage preparation, marriage enrichment and parenting.

The branch decided to ask the provincial government to make public a major study on the rights of the child, made by J.V. Belknap.

SFU Staff Walk Off

BURNABY (CP) — Office and library staff began a 24-hour walkout at Simon Fraser University at midnight this morning, but university officials said classes were being held as scheduled.

The workers, members of Local 2 of the Association of University and College Employees, set up picket lines on the road up to Simon Fraser, which is located on Burnaby Mountain just east of Vancouver.

Not Literary, But It's Filling

By PATRICIA WELLS

ITHACA, N.Y. — Julie Jordan's childhood daydreams usually cast her as the leading force of a lively literary salon. Her adult reality finds her directing pot scrubbing, floor mopping and kneading gigantic batches of homemade whole-grain bread.

But as owner — and central figure — of the popular Cabbagetown Cafe just outside the gates of Cornell University, Miss Jordan is, after a fashion, fulfilling those childhood wishes.

"This isn't exactly what I had in mind, but it's a challenge," she said, sitting in the early morning sunlight sipping a steaming cup of lemon-laced tea. "I own the restaurant, but 20 of us run it. We all cook. We all wait tables. We all work harder than we want to, but it's a family and it works."

The Cabbagetown Cafe, organized three years ago by a co-operative of former Cornell students and purchased by Miss Jordan a year and a half ago, illustrates the kind of metamorphosis such campus eateries undergo if they survive the first year of operation and the transitory nature of college students. Begun as a vegetarian reataurant in the days when vegetarianism was a "big deal," this one survives largely because someone was willing to stay and make it work.

The food at the Cabbagetown Cafe (the name comes from an album by the rock group The Band) is fresh, filling and highly imaginative, and it would be hard to spend more than $4 on a multi-course dinner. The menu, full of sprout salads, spicy Mexican dinners, stir-fried vegetables, hearty soups and whole-grain bread, is mostly inspired by Miss Jordan, who is also the author of a vegetarian cookbook, The Wings of Life (The Crossing Press, 1976, $5.95), which is popular on campuses across the U.S.

Grandma's Zucchini Casserole

This is a light garden casserole that is delicious hot or cold, and it makes a fine accompaniment to a simple green salad.

3 tablespoons olive oil
2 large onions, chopped
2 green peppers, diced
½ teaspoon marjoram
2 large zuchini, cut into rounds
2 potatoes, cooked with skins on and diced
½ pound cottage cheese
½ pound cheddar cheese, grated
2 to 3 cups tomato sauce, preferably homemade.

1. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
2. Saute onions, peppers and marjoram in olive oil. Add zucchini slices and continues to saute until vegetables are tender.
3. Remove from heat and add potato cubes. Stir in cottage cheese.
4. Pour one cup of tomato sauce into a large casserole or Dutch oven (or into individual baking dishes) and arrange the vegetable and cheese mixture over the sauce.
5. Cover with remaining tomato sauce and sprinkle with cheddar cheese. Bake for about 30 minutes or until hot and bubbly.

Double Dill Bread

This is a light dill rye bread, delicious with honey or thin slices of Swiss cheese.

1 tablespoons dried yeast (or one ¼-ounce package yeast)
2 cup lukewarm water
1 cup yogurt
2 tablespoons oil
3 tablespoons honey
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon dried dill weed
1 tablespoon dill seed
1 tablespoon caraway seed
5 cups whole-wheat flour
3 cups rye flour, approximately.

1. In a small bowl combine yeast and one-half cup water. Set aside for about five to 10 minute to allow the yeast to activate.
2. Combine remaining liquid ingredients, salt, dill and caraway. Then add yeast mixture. Add whole-wheat flour, cup by cup, stirring well after each addition.
3. Add rye flour, cup by cup, until the mixture becomes too difficult to stir. Then begin kneading, adding additional flour to keep the dough from being too sticky. Knead for a good 10 minutes, then form into a ball and place in a lightly oiled bowl. Cover and set in a warm spot to rise until double in bulk, or about one to 1½ hours.
4. When dough has doubled in bulk, punch down, knead for about a minute, then let rise a second time until double in bulk, about 45 minutes. Punch down again, knead for a minute, then shape into round free-form loaves or put into standard 9-by-5-by-3 inch baking pans. Cover and let rise again, for about 10 minutes.
5. Preheat oven to 425 degrees.
6. Place loaves in oven, and after 15 minutes reduce heat to 350 degrees. Check loaves 25 minutes. Remove from pans and tap bottom. If loaves sound hollow, they should be done. If not, return to oven for additional 10 minutes.
7. When baked, remove bread from pans and allow to cool on a wire rack.

Yield: 3 medium or 2 large loaves.

HEARING VAN STALLED

TORONTO (CP) — Lack of funds may mean the demise of a three-year program testing the hearing of Northern Ontario children.

About $55,000 is needed to keep on the road a 17-ton mobile hearing test lab that has visited up to 28 towns from Manitoulin Island to the Manitoba border for the last three summers.

The lab was built and operated with a $250,000 grant from the Atkinson Foundation, but program co-ordinator David Clarke says repeated requests to the Ontario ministries of health and northern affairs have yielded little more than statements of support.

"We've just broken the ground up north," he said. "Families are beginning to look for us."

Blood Test for Vitamins

NEW YORK (UPI) — Worried over getting too many vitamins or not enough?

A new simple blood test, reported by Pace University, will tell if you have enough, too much or just the right amount of eight essential vitamins.

The announcement, based on work by Dr. Seymour H. Hutner at Pace's Haskins Laboratories and Dr. Herman Baker at the New Jersey Medical School, said the test can be done with standard laboratory equipment in any hospital.

Hutner and Baker have been working with the protozoa in the vitamin detection test since 1959. Protozoa, unlike bacteria, react to vitamins in the same manner as humans.

"Some protozoa have the same requirements as man for vitamins and amino acid," Hutner said.

It detects vitamin content in as little as one-sixtieth of an ounce of the the substance tested, according to the scientists.

Baker said protozoa methods are effective in finding levels of the following in blood: Thiamine, biotin, niacin, riboflavin, vitamin B6, vitamin B12, pantothenic acid and folic acid and some other key blood constituents.

"Vitamins are essential to the human diet because they act as catalysts in the metabolism of food as it passes through the human body."

"In humans vitamin deficiency is at the root of numerous illnesses and, conversely, there are many illnesses which induce vitamin deficiencies.

"Those on crash or fad diets, alcoholics, pregnant women and many of the very old seem to suffer from vitamin deficiencies.

"Dieters often lack a well-balanced diet. Alcoholics suffer from liver disease and the lack of B-complex vitamins which ocur because of the liver's decreased capacity for vitamin storage and its impaired ability to use ingested vitamins.

"The protozoan tests will also enable human beings who suffer from vague ill health due to malnutrition to define exactly what is missing in their vitamin intake."

OIL PAN DENT WORRIES HIM

DEAR MIKE: When a mechanic recently installed new engine mounts in my 1970 Caprice, he accidentally put a big crease in the oil pan. He did this while jacking up the engine. The jack dented the pan right next to the drain plug. The mechanic says this dent won't hurt anything, but I'm concerned about oil-pump damage. Can the dent cause too little oil to get into the pump? — SNAKE ROOT

DEAR SNAKE: It depends on the dent itself — the shape, position and depth. Chevy V8's take oil to the pump from the bottom of the pickup. So it's conceivable (but unlikely) that the dent could block the pump screen.

DEAR MIKE: Regarding your answer to the man who wanted to put pure antifreeze into his radiator — I beg to differ. You say running 100 per cent antifreeze won't hurt anything. But ethylene glycol is funny stuff. It lowers freezing points to minus 92°F up to a ratio of 68/32. After that, as you add more antifreeze, your engine will freeze at only minus nine degrees. So I'm afraid you gave your readers a bum steer. — FROZEN

DEAR FROZEN: I received a number of letters like yours, and I appreciate everyone taking time to write.

DEAR MIKE: My 1978 Chevy diesel pickup leaks oil. The leak seems to be near the rear of the engine. The service department claims to have replaced the rear main oil seal, pan gasket, and an O-ring on some pump somewhere. Can you suggest any other possibilities? — LAKES OF OIL

DEAR LAKES: Check the oil line between the block and the oil cooler on the right side of the block. Sometimes the connections come loose or have been threaded.

DEAR MIKE: I often argue with my father about the warmup procedure for all our cars. He thinks the best way to warm up a car in the morning is to rev it high. I say idle it until warm. What do you say? — COOL DUDE

DEAR COOL: You're right. Revving a cold engine is like waking someone up on a winter's morning and making him run barefoot around the block. Tap the accelerator lightly at intervals so the engine will idle down. The engine doesn't have to be totally warm when you move, but keep r.p.m. low until you can feel warmth from the heater.

Stumped? Look to Past

By PAULINE GRAVES

When creative ideas are hard to come by, a look into the past or in other directions might produce the needed stimulus. Magazines and newspapers abound with furniture stores and model homes that display innovative ways to give a house vigor and excitement. It is all there for you to see, enjoy and borrow.

Such an idea, by interior designer Beverly Trupp, is seen here. The contemporary styling is in the book shelves that traverse the walls from floor to ceiling and across the top, to frame the deep-seated sofa. But the very special touch is the Victorian grill or cut-out work that softens the square edges of the bookshelf frame. It is a look to the past, unexpected, and the scrolls combined with the small, turned posts, so typical of that era, add charm to the wall. Wide, horizontal molding travels the width of the structure, underlining the top shelves, and behind it, flourescent tubes cast light on the wall and throw the enchanting fretwork into relief. The design attracts attention.

The bookshelves are 20 inches wide on each side, just enough to leave exact space for the sofa between them, and the nine-inch depth accommodates most books and plant containers nicely. For design interest, one by two inches cover the front vertical edges.

More Years on Job Better?

Leslie Holbrook

Longer work life; shorter retirement. Is this the best answer to satisfying, successful senior living? U.S. Senator Frank Church, chairman of a Senate special committee on aging, thinks it may be.

Canadian Senator David Croll and his committee on retirement age policies are trying to come up with firm recommendations concerning the same problem.

Senator Church says the ratio of retired citizens to active workers is expected to change from one in six to one in three by the year 2030, placing an increasing burden on young people to help finance the retirement of the growing number of elderly.

The U.S. senator does not believe that the recent raising of the legal age for mandatory retirement in the U.S. (65 to 70) will significantly affect the current trend toward lower retirement ages. But he does argue that new incentives must be found to encourage older people to stay in the work force rather than offering additional inducements — suggested by some — which tempt workers to retire earlier — sometimes 10 years earlier — than age 65.

He says early retirement should remain a basic right for those who wish to exercise that option, but there should be encouragement and material rewards (such as increased pensions when they do quit) for those who are able to and wish to carry on.

With some 800,000 unemployed in Canada, it may seem a poor time to say that older workers should be encouraged to remain on the job. However, a long-range view indicates that we cannot continue indefinitely to have more and more people packing it up at an earlier and earlier age and then living on pensions and security payments for perhaps another 30 years (as long as many have worked).

I hope recommendations of the Croll committee will include strong support for flexibility in the retirement age so that capable persons will be allowed to work without penalty for as long as they wish. The problems this may create will just have to be dealt with.

Such voluntary, rather than mandatory, retirement is unlikely to result in large numbers of older people continuing past the traditional age to retire. Many workers will be quite ready to quit, particularly those in dull, dead-end jobs.

I get more mail from readers who want to continue working past 65 than from those impatient to retire but I guess I am more likely to hear from livewires in their sixties eager to carry on than from workers just waiting to leave uninteresting, production-line tasks.

Gladys Potvin, Windsor, writes: "Automatic, forced retirement is discriminating and detrimental to my health" (copy of her doctor's letter substantiates this).

Walter Turnbull, Ottawa, puts it this way: "Nothing happened to me when I reached 65. The day after that birthday, I think I was just as good as the day before."

And for many days after that Mr. Turnbull is still going strong at 72.

Common ¢ents

By KATE MacQUEEN

So you pick up a bag of non-wheat flour to try something different in the oven? Don't expect immediate success unless your recipe calls for the flour you bought. Oat flour tends to make a sticky feeling in your mouth. Potato or soy flour is best used with other flours. Rice flour gives a definite graininess to baked goods. You'll have to experiment unless you know a good home economist.

Designing Italians

dear abby

DEAR ABBY. My husband and I are in our 50s and have two unmarried sons, 25 and 30. They don't live at home. Each prefers to have his own apartment, but we are still providing them with money, food, clothes, etc.

The oldest is a college graduate and employed, but seems to be in debt all the time.

The youngest had only one year of college, and goes from job to job. He's always broke due to poor judgment and minor scrapes with the law. Right now we have a lawyer trying to get his driver's licence back, so here we are, bailing him out again.

We love these boys, but I am tired of having to constantly rescue them from their mistakes. At our age, my husband and I should be looking out for our own welfare, but our sons are a constant drain on us financially as well as emotionally.

What do other parents do in such a situation, Abby? And what do you suggest? — TIRED PARENTS

DEAR TIRED: At 25 and 30 it's time your "boys" were men. Perhaps they have never become responsible and self-supporting because you have always rushed in to rescue them when the going got rough.

Though motivated by "love," you have done them a disservice. You will not always be around to bail them out. Tell them that from now on they are on their own.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is in the third grade and recently had a birthday party. She took the invitations to school and passed them out to the classmates she wanted. There were 29 kids in her class and she wanted only 23 of them at her party.

After the party her teacher called me and told me that my daughter should not have passed out her invitations at school unless she invited all the kids in her class.

Since when does a schoolteacher have the right to tell a pupil whom to invite to her birthday party? I would like your opinion in print. — OUTRAGED

DEAR OUTRAGED: Three cheers for the teacher! She is obviously much more understanding than you. The pain of having been left out will remain with those six uninvited children long after the fun has been forgotten by those who attended.

DEAR ABBY: I know a couple who live within blocks of his widowed 80-year-old mother.

On Mother's Day they send her a card with some money in the envelope. On the card is written: "Buy yourself something."

If you were that mother would you accept the money? — CLOSE RELATIVE

DEAR CLOSE: That would depend on how I felt about the givers.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is making plans for her wedding. Her mother and I were divorced, and we have both married again.

My daughter phoned me to tell me that her brother is going to give her away im marriage. Abby, I thought it was traditional for the bride's father to give her away. I told my daughter that if I could not give her away I would not attend the wedding. Was I right or wrong? — S.C.

DEAR S.C. I think you were wrong. If you receive an invitation, go.

Earth's Heat Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. energy department has announced that a rural town in eastern Maryland will be the site of the first East Coast attempt to tap the earth's natural heat as an energy source.

The department said Gruy Federal Inc., of Houston, Tex., would begin drilling a 1,500-metre (5,000-foot) hole in March near Crisfield, Md., to be completed in April.

The site appeared in initial tests to cover large masses of granite heated by energy released from naturally radioactive elements, commonly found in low concentrations in rock, the department said. The project will attempt to tap that heat for energy.

NO VIOLATORS of the NO PICNICS ruling were seen in Scituate, Mass., as waves sprayed over the seawall during winter storm that forced the evacuation of some residents from their coastline homes.

Rhodesian Vote Billed 'Last Hope'

SALISBURY (AP) — Rhodesia's frightened and dwindling white community votes Tuesday on whether to accept a black-rule constitution billed by the biracial government as the last hope for the survival of whites in the country.

White fears have been the target of both the "Yes" and "No" campaigns.

"If you vote no, Nkomo and Mugabe will dance in the streets of Moscow," the government warned in a full-page newspaper advertisement, violating its own edict against using the names of Communist-backed black nationalist guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe in the local press.

The far-right, all-white Rhodesian Action party, campaigning against black-majority rule, retorted: "If you vote yes, Nkomo and Mugabe will be dancing in the streets of Salisbury."

In the middle is the liberal and multi-racial National Unifying Force, whose leader, Muriel Rosin, says:

"We feel the referendum is utterly irrelevant. We need peace and recognition, neither of which is possible under the constitution. But if we (liberals) vote no, the outside world will read it as a no to majority rule."

The whites' dilemma is that a yes vote amounts to playing their last card. It would install a black-dominated government rejected by guerrillas, divided internally and probably incapable of ending either anti-Rhodesia economic sanctions or the guerrilla war.

A no vote, on the other hand, would look like a rejection of majority rule, would discredit the black leaders allied with white Prime Minister Ian Smith and would ensure continued sanctions and war.

An alternative many whites long for — one not offered in the referendum — would be to renounce Smith's 1965 unilateral declaration of independence from Britain and clear the way for London and Washington to try again to mediate a peace with the guerrillas.

More than any other event in their long isolation and debilitating guerrilla war, the referendum has brought into the open the fear, frustration and doubts of the white community, which because of emigration now probably numbers only 230,000 in a land of 6.8 million blacks.

But most political observers here believe that after more than 13 years of unquestionably following Smith, the majority of the 90,000 registered voters will rally behind him one last time.

Much of the white anxiety centres on one hard fact — the guerrilla war has dramatically escalated.

Cambodia Invasion Force in Trouble

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Vietnamese army still has the upper hand in Cambodia, six weeks after it invaded the country to install a pro-Hanoi government, but it is in trouble, say Western and Thai military analysts in Bangkok.

Although the analysts consider claims of military success by the forces of ousted premier Pol Pot to be exaggerated, they say fighting continues at a number of points, and the 100,000-man invasion force seems to have lost the momentum that took it 500 kilometres across the country to the Thai border in a few weeks.

Cambodian troops who remained loyal to Pol Pot and his Khmer Rouge government blew up the bridges on the major highways out of Phnom Penh as they retreated, the sources explain, and the Vietnamese are having trouble moving their artillery and other heavy equipment. Ambushes also are a problem.

Pol Pot's fugitive radio station, which broadcasts from southern China, said today that his forces "liberated" almost all of southeastern Cambodia and advanced to within 20 kilometres of Phnom Penh from the south.

"The Vietnamese invaders in Phnom Penh are losing morale and their fighting spirit," said the broadcast. "They are in a panic because they cannot communicate with the outside. All the roads leading from Phnom Penh to the provinces are under our control."

The broadcast also said that Kompong Chhnang, a major town with a military airfield on the highway to north-central Cambodia, was under attack and the Vietnamese there were under siege.

Pol Pot's station said on Sunday that the guerrilla army has encircled six major capitals and recaptured some of the temples at Angkor, the ancient capital in northwest Cambodia. Analysts in Bangkok considered these claims to be exaggerated.

N-Physicist Arrested

PARIS (AP) — Rolf Dobbertin, 45, an East German nuclear physicist with a West German passport, has been arrested and charged with feeding French nuclear secrets to East Germany for the last 15 years, official sources here said Sunday.

Among the information were details of his recent work on highly-secret high-power lasers, the sources.

They said Dobbertin was arrested Jan. 19, only hours after an East German defector gave his name to West German officials, and admitted his activities after six days' interrogation.

The defector's information also led to a series of arrests in West Germany.

Dobbertin's German wife, who is alleged to have acted as his radio operator, was also arrested, but provisionally freed to look after the couple's 11-year-old son.

Woman, 49, Jailed After Jet Hijacked

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman accused of commandeering a jumbo jetliner with 131 persons aboard was jailed Sunday after being overpowered by an FBI agent aboard the aircraft while actor Theodore Bikel sang to calm his fellow passengers.

"It wasn't entertainment, it was therapy," said Bikel, who played the guitar and sang during the 6½ hours the jet was parked at Kennedy International Airport after arriving from Los Angeles.

The FBI said Irene McKinney, a 49-year-old divorced mother of two described as distraught about her family and the Roman Catholic Church, commandeered the plane Saturday because she wanted to preempt network television.

Bikel, actor Sam Jaffe, theatrical agent Sue Mengers and singer Dino Martin, son of Dean Martin, were among the celebrities aboard the hijacked flight. The plane carried 119 passengers and a crew of 12.

For a time, Martin helped Bikel entertain the passengers, who snapped their fingers instead of applauding to avoid disrupting the FBI's negotiations with Mrs. McKinney in the rear of the plane.

No one was injured during the 11-hour ordeal in which the woman threatened to blow up the plane with nitroglycerin unless actors Charlton Heston, Jack Lemmon or Lindsay Wagner read an unspecified note over the air.

Heston spent five hours at the airport in Los Angeles and said afterwards: "I was prepared to do whatever I had to."

Mrs. McKinney, who lists separate addresses in Los Angeles and Cypress, Calif., is to be arraigned in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn, possibly today.

Authorities said Mrs. McKinney hijacked the plane over Prescott, Ariz., after passing a note to the pilot, Thomas Cook, claiming that she had nitroglycerin, a highly explosive chemical, in her flight bag. It was later discovered that the bag contained a bottle of perfume, a plane ticket and personal items, but no explosives.

SIMPLE RITES TODAY FOR ROCKEFELLER

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — The body of Nelson Rockefeller has been cremated and burial was planned today following a simple memorial service limited to family members and close friends.

The former U.S. vice-president and four-time New York governor, who died of a heart attack Friday night, was cremated Sunday at the Ferncliff Crematory near the family's 250-acre Pocantico Hills estate.

A public service, at which U.S. and international leaders are expected to pay tribute to the best-known of the five Rockefeller brothers, will be held Friday at Riverside Church.

Among family members who gathered at Pocantico Hills Sunday to console Rockefeller's widow, Margaretta (Happy) Rockefeller, and their children were the two remaining sons of John D. Rockefeller Jr.—David, chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank, and Laurance, conservationist and financier.

A fourth brother, John D. Rockefeller III, died in an auto accident last July, and a fifth, Winthrop, former governor of Arkansas, died of cancer in 1973. The only sister, Abby Rockefeller Mauze, died of cancer several years ago.

Boy, 14 Admits 2 Murders

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — A 14-year-old who pleaded guilty to murdering his uncle and wounding his aunt and reportedly had a "hit list" of other intended victims has been sentenced to two concurrent life sentences.

Snohomish County Deputy Prosecutor Kay Trumbull had called for consecutive life terms, describing David W. Mesler "an extremely dangerous young man made even more so by his benign appearance."

Mesler had come from Thornville, Ohio, to live with his aunt and uncle only three weeks before the slayings.

"I was in a corner," he said of the killings.

Calling him a psychopath who has "very, very deep-seated problems relating to human beings," Superior Court Judge John E. Rutter said Friday it is the state's responsibility to provide psychiatric treatment, but admitted there is very little in the state prison system.

Rutter said he was making the life terms concurrent to make it harder for the state to avoid its responsibility to the young man.

Ms. Trumbull said Mesler has shown "a total lack of remorse" and had planned the murders several days earlier. She quoted doctors who examined Mesler as saying he showed no more concern for the killings than kicking a dog.

She said police found a "hit list" which included the names of the Castles and several other relatives and also had a list of items he planned to take from his victims.

CITY WATCHDOG REPORT 93. Many thanks go to the James Bay residents, especialy Max Hopper, who attended the Proposed Rezoning - James Bay Area Public Hearing. The James Bay area has the greatest density at the present time. It's Your City's Watchdog opinion after checking four of the City's Parkades that it appears at the present time certain parkades do not have any fire protection equipment in the event of automobile fires. Centennial Parkade on Fisgard Street is the worst because the closest fire hydrant is in Centennial Square in front of the Air Canada Office. If there was an autombile fire in the parkade there appears to be no way that fire hoses could be brought to the fire because the sides of the parkade are enclosed by cement blocks and it does not have a fire pipe at the front of the building as does the View and Yates Street Parkades. The Johnson Street Parkade is the next worst because it also appears there is no way to get fire hoses to an automobile fire. Therefore Your City's Watchdog wishes to warn the readers of this report that at the present time you park your automobile in these four parkades at a greater risk than the Blanshard Street underground parkade which has an up todate sprinkler system. Please continue phoning 383-6259 or write to Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards, PO Box 154, Victoria for information regarding City Matters. Postcrips: If it's right for hawkers to have their businesses confined to the old Black Ball Wharf then it's only right that another large business enterprise in the Inner Harbour also should move to the other side of the Habour to improve the scenic view of the Parliament Bldgs.

MATTRESSES
LATEX RUBBER — Mattresses automatically adjust to variations in weight giving even support the full length of the spine. Latex is comfortable, cool, and non-allergenic.
"Q"-FOAM — is highly resilient foam that comes in a variety of density, which enables us to manufacture a mattress to the specifications recommended by many doctors.
We manufacture mattresses in odd shapes and sizes, with box springs to match, available in spring filled or solid base.

Outdoor Sowing Can Begin

GARDENING
hilda beastall

A limited range of vegetables may be started in the outdoor garden during a mild spell from this weekend on through February. The chief requirement is a small piece of ground which does not hold free moisture during winter: that means there is no puddling on the surface nor at the bottom of a 10-inch hole when dug with a shovel.

Some of us with a heavy loam may need to raise a bed by taking out a trench around a rectangle of the size needed for what we wish to grow. Well rotted compost and old manure or mushroom compost will be added to the soil of the raised portion to keep it open in winter and moisture-holding in summer.

When the space is cleared of our chosen vegetables it can be levelled and used for late summer sowing of fall and early winter vegetables.

Just now I'm interested in getting the best of our garlic bulbs back into the soil. They now have a slender green shoot in the centre, indicating the change in chemistry which will make the odor more pronounced and indeed, in time, not digestible.

Garlic grows well and easily here, making good size during the long early cool season, and then ripening during July and early August. Usually the bulbs if grown in a separate place (such as on a raised bed) where last summer watering cannot reach their roots, will be ready to lift by the end of August.

Liking very much the same conditions as garlic are the related shallots. I have asked for these at a farm supply store; they tell me it may be some weeks before shallots are received from the East because of freezing weather across the country. Too bad there is not sufficient commercial stock grown locally for home gardeners plantings. Shallots are a pleasant young onion flavor during summer and early fall before regular onions are mature.

Two other vegetables to grow in early soil that is sunny and well drained as well as sheltered from cold wind, are early peas and broad beans. Both like cool soil and cool air for growing and then begin flowering in the warmer and sunnier days of late spring.

Look over your seed packages from the past year or two. Perhaps you have Laxton's Progress peas and Windsow broad beans, or you may already have ordered them or can find packets in early displays at local garden centres.

Depending on size of family, a sowing of 25 or 50 peas will give small pickings of pods over a period of about a month and because they are the first of a new season you'll believe their flavor is better than you have ever known.

About the same number of broad bean seeds sown six inches apart in two staggered rows for support (stems are very stiff and upright) will result in pods over a longer period than the peas.

When weather becomes warm in June, broad beans cease producing but while the beans are young and tender they are a great delicacy. As with pea pods of very small size, broad bean pods can also be cut into half-inch squares for cooking, Chinese fashion. This way there is no waste, and you get the added nutrition of minerals so much needed at the beginning of the summer season.

Make these early plantings and sowings a part of the over-all plan for vegetable production this year. You'll enjoy the results.

Fund Drive Eyed For Ship Replicas

A campaign is planned in 1980 to raise funds in the Pacific Northwest to build replicas of the Capt. George Vancouver ships Discovery and Chatham.

The announcement was made by the board of governors of the International Science Council of Sarasota, Florida, meeting in San Francisco.

The council also made a $100,000 Charles A. Langlais Memorial Grant to the International Maritime Heritage Society to enable the society to initiate the project in cooperation with the National Maritime Museum, Greenwich, England.

This would involve drawing up plans for the construction of the Discovery and Chatham which set sail from England in 1791 on a voyage to survey the northwest coast of North America.

Capt. Keith Cameron, director of the Maritime Museum of B.C. here, said he hasn't heard about the proposal.

"However, there is a strong movement in the United States to initiate such projects," he said. "I wouldn't be surprised if we are visited soon by people interested in the construction program."

The Science Council in a press release said tentative plans call for the completion of the ships by 1988. They would sail from England in 1991 and arrive in time for the Vancouver Bicentennial Celebrations in 1992.

The replicas would be based in Victoria, Vancouver or Seattle.

Refugees Helped

A $1,500 cheque was presented Sunday by members of Lambrick Park Church to World Vision, an international organization assisting under-privileged people.

The money will be used to assist Vietnamese refugees aboard ships who are seeking new homes but can't find countries to accept them as immigrants.

World Still Green for Hepburn

By LAWRENCE LAURENT
Washington Post

A living legend at the age of 70, who possesses the world's most beautiful facial bone structure and is the most honored film actress in our time. This is Katharine Hepburn who never bent to the world's whims, and who can be seen on television tonight in a drama called The Corn Is Green. (Channel 7 at 9 p.m.)

The world is still green for this willful, obstinate, determined, forceful, intelligent, compassionate and tender woman, who has received just about every honor that the acting profession can provide.

She has won Hollywood's Oscar three different times, and one needs a small computer to keep track of the Oscar nominations. She has starred on Broadway in many dramas and in one musical. Her most recent television venture, Love Among the Ruins, was with Laurence Olivier, and it was TV at its entertaining finest. It received six Emmy nominations and won five of the little golden Emmy statuettes.

She has remained, in her own description, "tall, skinny and very determined." If she has any regrets she keeps them to herself, although one simply understands that the death of Spencer Tracy came as a blow.

They lived together, although he had a wife whom he would never divorce. Even the Tracy-Hepburn relationship began in competition, when she arrived on the movie set, surveyed the 5-foot-11 Tracy and suggested he might not be tall enough to play opposite her. Irishman Tracy responded, "Maybe I'll cut you down to size."

In a recent appearance on 60 Minutes to unashamedly plug the two-hour telecast of The Corn Is Green she offered a low opinion of the art of acting. She said, "I think that pretending that you're someone else and learning the lines is a little, tiny talent. Spence always said about actors, 'Remember who shot Lincoln?' And I say, 'Remember Shirley Temple at the age of three was considered a genius.' So look out if you take acting too seriously."

Don't take Miss Hepburn too seriously, however, when she low-rates the profession. She has long been known as one of the more demanding actresses in film, quick with suggestions to directors and certain in her specific understanding of lenses for cameras and lighting for actors. She knows her business, and she's rarely reluctant to offer an opinion.

One director who worked easily with her is George Cukor, now 80, and he is the director for The Corn Is Green. He directed such oustanding motion pictures as David Copperfield, Camille, The Philadelphia Story, Gaslight, Dinner at Eight, Born Yesterday, Adam's Rib and My Fair Lady.

His reputation rests solidly on being "a woman's director," and he is best known as the first director to be fired during the filming of Gone With The Wind. He has joked, "I was fired from the biggest picture ever made, and I'm still here to tell the story."

He directed Katharine Hepburn in nine films, including Little Women, and The Corn Is Green marks their 10th joint effort. He likes to reminisce about the time he was directing Tracy and Hepburn in Keeper of the Flame, when Hepburn became a bit of a pest. She watched Tracy play a scene with another actor and said to Cukor, "I don't think that was done correctly. I think Spencer should be sitting when he says those lines." Cukor didn't say anything.

Later, after a scene with actress Audrey Christie, Hepburn said to Cukor, "Miss Christie should speak those lines more softly. It wasn't done correctly." Again, Cukor kept quiet.

Still later, during a scene in which Tracy and Christie are talking, only to be interrupted and told that the rear of the house is on fire, Hepburn turned to George and said, "I don't think they should be told about the fire. They would smell the smoke."

This time gentle George responded: "It must be wonderful to know all about acting and all about fires."

The wonderful thing about The Corn Is Green is that a basically excellent drama was written for the stage by Emlyn Williams. It became a movie with Bette Davis in the role of the spinster who is determined that young Welsh miners get an education.

Hepburn calls it "a funny play with enormous power behind it. A marvellous kind of elevation and vigor. A zest for life. You can't have the enormous defeatism that's flourishing today. Grovelling around in the dirt is not how the world progesses. Oh-How-Sad and Oh-How-Hopeless is a disease, I think. And a bore."

Ian Saynor co-stars with Hepburn as the gifted Welsh miner who knows that while he's underground, above him the corn is green. In support of Hepburn and Saynor is the kind of company of actors usually found on the London stage, which is where all of them came from. They include Bill Fraser, Patricia Hayes, Anna Massey (daughter of Raymond Massey), Artro Morris, Dorothea Phillips and Toyah Wilcox. Miss Wilcox plays the strumpet who claims to have been made pregnant by the promising young miner.

The drama was filmed both in a London studio and on location in Wales by Ted Scaife, a greatly honored cinematographer.

Hepburn, born of well-to-do parents in Hartford, Conn., and educated at Bryn Mawr, easily became a Broadway star and was immediately tapped for the motion picture industry. A test was made in New York and shipped to Los Angeles. Instantly she was a star.

Breast Surgery Useless?

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Radical surgery is no more effective in saving the lives of women with breast cancer than more conservative, less mutilating treatment, a U.S. researcher says.

Prof. Maurice Fox, a Massachusetts Institute of Technology biologist, says tests in Denmark and Great Britain show there is no survival benefit provided by radical mastectomy that is not equally provided by simple mastectomy plus radiation therapy.

Radical mastectomy includes removal of the breast, lymph nodes under the arm and chest muscle. Simple mastectomy is limited to removal of the breast.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association about his research, Fox says there has been a dramatic increase in the reported incidence of breast cancer since 1965. However, despite this increase in early detection, the risk of dying of breast cancer has remained unchanged for the past 40 years.

NUCLEAR TEST LEUKEMIA LINK

WASHINGTON (WP) — An 18-month government study has confirmed that twice as many leukemia cases as expected have developed in ex-GIs exposed to low-level radiation while participating in a 1957 nuclear weapons test nicknamed Smoky.

Although the numbers are small — eight leukemia cases instead of the 3.5 that would be normal for the 3,100-man group — the initial findings of the inquiry by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's Center for Disease Control will have a major effect on the controversy that has developed in the past year over the long-term health effects of low-level radiation.

That is because it comes as a White House-ordered interagency task force on radiation exposure is about to make recommendations after an eight-month inquiry of its own.

One of the most sharply debated issues within the interagency group is determining what federal care and benefits should accrue to ex-GIs and federal employees who claim that exposure to low levels of radiation brought on cancer years later.

Most government agencies and officials have maintained there was a threshold radiation level, and that exposure below that level would not cause an increased risk of cancer.

Based on that assumption, the Veterans Administration has turned down almost all claimants who linked their exposure to radiation during 1950s nuclear weapons tests to leukemia or other forms of cancer they subsequently developed.

A year ago, however, the Smoky case was made the focus of public attention through hearings of the House subcommittee on health. During Smoky, GIs manoeuvered near ground-zero hours after detonation of a 44-kiloton shot .

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Government officials ignored warnings from experts that a major nuclear safety study had serious flaws and kept the project going for 13 years to counter potential compensation claims from radiation-damaged workers, according to U.S. Energy Department documents.

However, in 1974, when the results of the study unexpectedly showed danger form low-level radition, disappointed Atomic Energy Commission officials yanked the funding for the research before it was made public and decided to shift the study to in-house investigators critical of the findings.

The Energy Department documents were turned over late last year under a Freedom of Information request by Dr. Thomas Mancuso, a University of Pittsburgh epidemiologist who originally headed the government study, and Michael Bancroft, an attorney for the Public Citizen Litigation Group here. The documents were made available to The Washington Post

Low-level radiation has become an increasing concern among some medical experts who fear it may be responsible for elevated cancer levels. Nearly 500,000 past and present employees at private and government nuclear installations have been exposed to such radiation and hundreds of thousands of persons received radiation exposure during government nuclear tests in the Southwest since the 1940s.

A federal researcher said Sunday that the number of workers exposed to the radiation could be 5 million.

Mancuso, a leading radiation epidemiologist, was granted federal funds in 1964 for what turned out to be the government's major long-term study of low-level radiation. The $6 million project was aimed at radiation exposure in workers at the government's nuclear facilities at Hanford, Wash., and Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The Energy Department documents give the following information about the study:

—In 1967, a panel of radiation experts picked by the AEC warned that the study's objectives were "hopeless" because too few workers were included. But several members of the group pointed out that since the "political" purpose of the work was to fend off workers' claims against the AEC for radiation damages, the study should be continued.

—When a separate study in 1974 by Dr. Samuel Milham, a Washington state epidemiologist, did show elevated cancer levels in the Hanford workers AFC officials tried to pressure Mancuso into contradicting the Milham study.

The AEC effort was made despite recommendations from its own consultants two years earlier that the real value from Mancuso's study lay in its still-incomplete long-term conclusions.

—A year later federal nuclear officials were stunned to learn that Mancuso also had discovered long-range radiation problems in the Hanford workforce.

ENTHUSIASTS TAPE THE BEETLE'S ROAR

He won another award when he stuck a microphone inside a tree trunk.

The British Broadcasting Corp. broadcast the results Sunday of its annual contest devoted to weird noises and odd sounds captured by a strange bunch of enthusiasts who roam the countryside throughout the year recording wild life.

The contest is co-sponsored by a recording tape manufacturer. Entrants interpret "wild life" a bit loosely.

There were thousands of birds, rutting red deer and Mike Turner's recording of "some strange sounds coming from under the floor of the pigsty," which turned out to be a family of badgers. But there also was Davis's "ironing-board beetle."

"I was in my den when my wife shouted from the kitchen that there was this creature on her ironing board," Davis recalled. "I rushed out and found this tiny beetle, about 8 millimeters (5-16ths of an inch) long."

Davis popped it in a bottle. Then, as any good enthusiast would, he stuck a microphone in the bottle with it.

"I was absolutely amazed by the sound this tiny little insect made," he said.

On came a roar like a good-sized outboard motor at full throttle — a steady, growling rumble Davis said the miniscule beetle made with its abdomen.

Davis won another prize for the sound of a tree. Not wind through a tree — the noise made by the tree itself.

"I modified a microphone to catch the sound of wood-boring beetle larvae feeding in a tree," he said. He bored a hole in a 45-foot ash, inserted his mike and "instead of larvae I heard this fantastic sound of stress, with the faint sound of water running up the tree."

He played the groaning, squeaking rumbles made by the living ash, like the sound of rubber stretching. Davis said the stressful sounds "were caused by the fibers in the tree rubbing together" in a faint wind.

Heather Ames won a novice's award with a recording of "courting toads." She said they made "lovely bubbling sounds, and they seem to blow through their noses — disgusting sound."

Coal Mine Studies 'Tainted'

ELKFORD (CP) — Environmental studies into a major coal mining proposal 50 kilometres north of here are tainted with scandal, says the director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation.

Bill Otway said the studies represent "a blatant conflict of interest."

Techman Consulting Ltd. of Calgary recently completed four years of studies showing a mine can be developed with little harm to the Elk Valley environment, 70 kilometres northeast of Cranbrook.

Otway said Techman is a subsidiary of another company which is a subsidiary of Scurry Rainbow Ltd., a shareholder in the proposed Elko Mine.

Techman officials call Otway's accusations "hot air" but do not argue with the ownership facts.

New CP Air Fare to Europe

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new holiday fare structure between Canada and Amsterdam that provides for longer stays in Europe at a lower fare for early bookings, was announced by CP Air.

The reduced charter class fares, subject to government approval, are scheduled to go into effect May 1. Charter class fares are for travel on scheduled flights at prices competitive with pure charter flights.

NDPer Leggatt Runs in Coquitlam

PORT COQUITLAM (CP) — Stu Leggatt, New Democratic Party MP for New Westminster, was nominated Sunday to run for the NDP in the new provincial riding of Port Coquitlam-Port Moody.

Leggatt, who was unopposed, said he wants a government with heart and that is what the NDP has. A provincial election is expected this spring.

Beef Import Laws Knocked

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Canada's beef import laws give too many discretionary powers to the federal government, Henry Blazowski, secretary-manager of the British Columbia Cattlemen's Association, said Saturday.

Blazowski said in an interview that the legislation is unpredictable and beef imports vary from year to year. He made the comments following a meeting Saturday with federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan.

Peace Council Anti-Bomb

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Peace Council adopted a resolution Sunday calling on the Canadian government to oppose the neutron bomb.

The council, an affiliate of the Canadian Peace Congress, also urged the government to ask United States President Jimmy Carter to halt production of the bomb.

The council also said it wants the federal government to condemn the U.S. Trident nuclear submarine program.

Better Salesmen?

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — The New Democratic Party is ahead of Social Credit in provincial opinion polls because the opposition members are better salesmen, Premier Bill Bennett said Saturday.

The premier was referring to a recent poll commissioned by the Progressive Conservative party which saw Social Credit trailing the NDP with the Conservatives a distant third and the Liberals fourth among decided voters.

Bennett told a regional convention of his party that NDP leader Dave Barrett is doing a poor job in opposition and the NDP is a negative opposition.

He also said Barrett is the best salesman he has ever seen and could sell refrigerators to Eskimos.

Dealing with a regional issue, Bennett said the government became involved with the Gibraltar mine labor dispute because it had reached the point where both labor and management showed no signs of altering their positions.

Labor Minister Allan Williams has scheduled meetings in Vancouver with representatives of Gibraltar and the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers.

A strike-lockout of more than 400 workers began at the copper mine near here May 26.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A 16-year-old girl armed with a semi-automatic rifle and hundreds of rounds of ammunition opened fire at an elementary school today, killing two adults and wounding nine others, including six children.

Lt. John Mansfield confirmed two adults were killed, one officer was wounded and eight students wounded, with injuries ranging from serious to superficial.

The dead were the school's principal and custodian.

Share Profit – IWA

B.C. loggers and millworkers will go for a share-the-wealth pay increase of 14 to 20 per cent this spring, officials of the International Woodworkers of America said today.

They point to profit increases of as much as 100 per cent over the previous year. Meanwhile, the companies say they need this extra money to reinvest in the industry during 1979.

IWA locals will meet in March to hammer out a unified list of demands.

Wages will be the big issue and the demand will be in double digits.

And they almost certainly will demand the agreement be for one year only.

"We are just completing a two-year contract and we won't make that mistake again," said Lewis, who is spokesman for 1,900 Victoria-area woodworkers.

"Our wages went up 13 per cent (in the two years) but the cost of living was up 18 or 19 per cent. We fell behind by that six per cent."

His approach: recapture the six per cent from the past two years, plus nine per cent based on the expected cost of living increase in the coming year.

But added to that, he said, should be a share-the-wealth bonus of four or five per cent because companies are doing so well.

"Profits of the companies are up about 100 per cent. Our members are entitled to a share of those profits.

"Look at it this way. If we were getting paid in American dollars we would get an increase of at least 15 per cent more. The companies are getting their revenues in American dollars and we should get the equivalent amount in extra Canadian dollars."

Lewis said he believes Calvert Knudsen, president of MacMillan Bloedel, gets his salary in U.S. funds.

"In Victoria we sent a questionnaire to our members and the response was heavily in favor of a large pay increase this year. Our members are united on this issue. We will try to convince Mr. Thompson his local is being conservative

Arsonist Hits Belmont

Fire investigators found evidence of arson after a $100,000 fire at Belmont High School, 3067 Jacklin, early Sunday.

Colwood RCMP said a can thought to have contained an inflammable substance was found at the scene. It is is being analysed in a Vancouver laboratory.

A Langford fire department spokesman said the provincial fire marshal is investigating.

Internal alarm systems were ringing but appeared not to have been heard by nearby residents.

More sophisticated alarms were in the process of being installed when the fire occurred.

The lab was gutted and serious damage caused to the food lab. Two washrooms and a regular classroom adjoining also were damaged.

Belmont is like many schools in the province criticized recently by ICBC fire protection engineer Gordon Collins. The insurance corporation inspected 1,700 schools in an effort to reduce losses and the number of arson fires.

Collins said most are of wood frame construction, having been erected in the past 25 years in a province where wood products appear to be favored by architects.

The insurance corporation now requires all schools to have either a sprinkler system or automatic fire detector in every combustible area.

There are no sprinklers at Belmont, but there are both heat sensors and intruder alarms. These are to be wired into police and fire departments to give them their maximum value for fire and burglary protection.

Trading Halted To Check Gold

An exchange spokesman said an engineer and staff from the exchange will prepare a report on the reserves.

The move came after Consolidated president Ken Sanders said last week his company had plans to develop an open pit mine on a huge gold deposit in the Charlottes.

Sanders estimated the site, discovered by a logger and part-time prospector from Nanaimo, had a potential gross of $2 billion.

But the exchange spokesman said that figure is meaningless unless the cost of development and extraction is also known.

He also criticized Sanders and the media for describing the increased claim-staking activity in the Charlottes as a gold rush. He said there is always a lot of activity in an area when a possibly important find is made.

Since last October, when Consolidated got rich results from a test drilling, 1,230 claim units have been staked in the area.

He said Sanders' statements had been highly promotional.

But Sanders said he doesn't regret going public on his company's plans.

"I stick to my guns," he said from his Vancouver office.

He said Consolidated's open pit mine would be an important development for the province.

Poly Foams Deadly Fire Hazard

TORONTO (CP) — Government officials say plastic foams are a fire hazard and it may be years before they have the knowledge and legislation to control its use.

Polyurethane and polystyrene is used in everything from coffee cups to toilet seats and armchair stuffing to home insulation.

National Research Council scientists in Ottawa say the plastic foam insulation, lining the walls of thousands of basement recreation rooms, is as much as 10 times more fire-prone than previously thought.

The federal hazardous products branch says about one-third of all mattresses sold in Canada contain the most dangerous combination of materials from a fire hazard point of view — untreated cotton batting and urethane.

In the first 10 months of 1978, 40 people died in Ontario in upholstered furniture fires, compared with 27 in all of 1977.

But government officials say it will be some years before there are regulations governing upholstered furniture, most of which is stuffed with polyurethane foam.

Tom Adair, fire prevention officer in the Metropolitan Toronto borough of North York, said in an interview that when a chair containinng polyurethane catches fire, there is a rapid accumulation of gases.

Que. Given One Year

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government has given Quebec a one-year deadline to hold its referendum or face a vote organized by Ottawa.

Justice Minister Marc Lalonde issued the warning Sunday, saying that if the Parti Quebecois government doesn't hold a referendum by next fall, "they have indicated they might want to do it in the spring of 1980.

"If they reach that time and start saying spring 1981, I think it would be understandable for the federal government to go and ask the people of Quebec what their views are."

Quebecers must vote on whether they want to stay in Canada before they go to the polls in the next provincial election, Lalonde told the Blainville-Deux Montagnes Liberal Association.

"It's impossible to indefinitely delay the resolution of this type of debate — the political instability cannot be allowed to continue indefinitely," he said.

"If we get to the spring of 1980 only to find the PQ still isn't ready, the federal government, at that time, would have to seriously consider going to the people of Quebec to ask what their views are, even if the Quebec governemnt is afraid to ask them."

But Lalonde rejected a suggestion at the meeting that Ottawa ask all Canadians what they think of the possibility of Quebec independence, by including an extra ballot in the forthcoming federal election.

CHINA PLANNING VIETNAM BLITZ?

NEW YORK (AP) — Newsweek magazine quotes intelligence sources as saying China intends to launch an attack on Vietnam as punishment for that country's Cambodia invasion which ousted the Chinese-supported Pol Pot regime.

The magazine says China has amassed a force of 80,000 to 120,000 troops on the Vietnamese border.

The attack could bring in the Russians, who have massed troops on the Soviet-Chinese border, Newsweek says.

The Chinese could respond to a Soviet invasion with nuclear weapons but Peking's armed forces could not contain the Russians, the magazine adds.

The magazine quotes a U.S. source as saying: "We're just worried that an invasion of Vietnam might take place after the visit" of Chinese Vice-Premier Teng Hsiao-ping to the U.S. "since it would look like we gave them the green light."

MP's Wife Was Given CIA-Funded LSD

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The wife of a Canadian MP was among a number of patients treated with LSD by a Montreal psychiatrist who is alleged to have received some funds from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Val Orlikow, wife of Winnipeg North NDP MP David Orlikow, maintains she was given no explanation about the effects of the drug when she received it while undergoing treatment for mental depression during the 1950s at the Allan Memorial Institute.

On 14 occasions she was given intravenous injections of the hallucinogen by the late Dr. D. Ewen Cameron, head of the institute, says John Marks in his new book The Search for the Manchurian Candidate.

Marks is the co-author of the book The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence. Cameron headed the Montreal institute during 1943-64 and died in 1967.

Cameron's work on behavior modification was funded in part by a grant from the Society for the Investigation of Human Ecology, which Marks describes as a CIA front.

Details of her treatment were confirmed by Orlikow, who was a Winnipeg city alderman when his wife began receiving the drug injections. She went to the Montreal institute as a voluntary patient in late 1956.

Cameron administered the injections personally. She then was left alone in a room with a tape recording of her last session with the psychiatrist and ordered to make notes on the recording and her feelings.

Mrs. Orlikow hated the treatment, which sometimes was administered three or four times a week, the author says. She finally insisted that it be stopped.

In his book, which exposes alleged secret CIA experiments in mind control, Marks says Cameron began receiving funds from the CIA through the human ecology society in 1957.

Marks says Cameron may not have known that the CIA was the ultimate source of the money, about $19,000 a year.

Orlikow disagrees.

"It's very unlikely he didn't know," the NDP legislator said in a telephone interview from Winnipeg. "Certainly, in retrospect, it seems that my wife was part of a series of experiments."

Marks says that in any event, the CIA officials "knew exactly what they were paying for."

The CIA at the time was worried that the Chinese and

April Visit For Prince

Prince Charles will visit Victoria the first week of April, Prime Minister Trudeau's office announced today in Ottawa.

The Victoria visit, Charles' first here, will be part of a cross-country tour April 1-7 in which the Prince of Wales will visit Governor-General Edward Schreyer in Ottawa and carry out several official duties.

The prince will visit World College of the Pacific (Pearson College) while in Victoria.

His agenda also includes visits to the Prince of Wales Northern Heritage Centre in Yellowknife, the Royal Winnipeg Rifles in Winnipeg and the Royal Regiment of Canada in Toronto.

Details of the tour will be released later.

Prince Charles was last in Canada when he attended the Commonwealth Games in Edmonton last summer.

The Queen Mother, meanwhile, is to attend the gathering of the Scottish clans in Nova Scotia and the June 30 running of the Queen's Plate in Toronto.

Three Boys Face Burglary, Fire Charges

Three boys arrested in the playground ship at Willows Park were charged Sunday with burglary and setting fires on consecutive weekends at the nearby Kiwanis pavilion.

Oak Bay police discovered a break-in at the concession building at Willows Beach at 3:30 a.m. and found boys aged 16, 17 and 18 under a tarpaulin in the sailing ship mockup about 100 feet away.

The tarp had been taken from the tearoom, where an attempt was made to set fire to its sign.

On Jan. 20 the pavilion was entered and a canvas canopy valued at $200 was burned.

Charges in juvenile and adult courts include breaking and entering with intent to steal, theft and setting fires. They were read to the accused by a justice of the peace pending court appearances.

Food and toys were stolen by youngsters who broke into Sidney Elementary School on Sunday.

Sidney RCMP said two boys aged 9 and 11 were caught running from the school shortly before noon. A window had been broken.

At Glen Lake Elementary School several teachers' desks were rifled after entry to the school was gained between late Friday and Sunday morning, also by means of a window.

Minor school supplies and cookies were stolen in a weekend break-in at Metchosin elementary school, police reported.

Carr Art To Tour Europe

An exhibition of Emily Carr paintings will tour London, Paris and Brussels this summer as part of the provincial government program of sending B.C. artists' works abroad, Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said today.

The over-all collection of more than 40 of her most important works is being brought together from the Vancouver Art Gallery and the Provincial Archives.

The exhibition opens at Canada House in London July 16. The Paris and Brussels dates have not yet been set.

The works will be shown in the Canadian embassies in the two continental cities.

Crash Victim 'Fair'

Norman Liimatta, 1504 Oakland, is in the intensive care unit suffering paralysis on one side. He received a spinal injury in the three-vehicle crash at Cook and Johnson.

Janice Campbell, 18, of 1146 Leonard was killed.

Robert Cheeke, 17, of 1664 Burton has been charged with dangerous driving.

A spokesman said six persons including Cheeke were in a panel truck being driven north on Cook when it was in collision with two cars eastbound on one-way Johnson Street.

Head-On Highlands Meeting

Neighbors from the Highlands will meet head-to-head Tuesday night in a battle to decide the future of the wild and sprawling area northwest of the city.

At issue is a proposed bylaw change that would remove a 45-acre subdivision freeze in effect since 1973.

The Capital Regional District's proposal would permit 10-acre lot sizes in some areas, while allowing residential development in areas covered by Willis Point and Langford fire departments. The freeze would remain along the steep, wooded shoreline on Saanich Inlet.

Regional board chairman Murray Glazier says the freeze is an interim measure that should be lifted and replaced with a land-use plan for the entire area.

But any thoughts that such a move would be simple ended last year when Langford director Ed Lubick held a series of meetings with residents and invited their opinions.

Lubick was swamped with briefs which he says fall into two distinct and opposed groups.

Half of those who wrote to him supported the proposed re-zoning, saying that the 45-acre minimum infringes on their rights to do what they want with their land.

Others argue that the unique close-to-nature atmosphere of the Highlands will be destroyed if the freeze is lifted.

Rainey said she and some others in the area have been placed in financial hardship because of the 45-acre requirement.

"It may be nice for people to drive by and look at the scenery here, but there are people like me who stand to lose everything so they can have that privilege.

"I have a court judgment against me that gives me until July 10 to come up with $32,000 or lose the property, but because of the freeze no one will buy."

On the other side of the coin are Highland homeowners like Bob McMinn, who says that if the freeze is lifted Greater Victoria will have missed its last chance to preserve a natural area close to the city.

In a brief entitled A City Forest for British Columbia's Capital Region McMinn urges the government to look overseas before deciding how the Highlands should be developed.

McMinn points to Oslo, Norway, where a large forested area has been preserved near to the city.

Oslo's Municipal Forest is a tremendous recreational area, he says, and the Highlands has the potential to become something similar.

He says it is urgent to preserve the 45-acre freeze because, if nothing else, it keeps the options open, allowing time for an in-depth study.

"The Highlands presents a unique opportunity as a Capital Region recreational area because it is a large (15,000 acres), beautiful, rugged, variable and largely unspoiled area, and is for the most part within the 10-mile circle of downtown Victoria."

But Rainey says that most of the large acreage in the area is privately held and people just don't have access to the recreational forest that exists now.

"I question how many people have been able to use the Highlands for recreation up to this point," she says.

McMinn agrees that access may be a problem now, but points to the Western Communtiy Official Settlement Plan, which calls for the establishment of trail right-of-ways in the area.

"If only the politicians would get on with the job of implementing what they've already started," he said.

McMinn also added that he's sympathetic to the situation of Rainey and others in the district who are in financial difficulty because of the freeze.

But he says the government should look at ways to solve the individual problems and not create other problems by a sweeping rezoning.

"It's tragic to let the opportunity that we have here wither away simply because we're not being imaginative enough to get at the real problem of the hardship cases."

On Getting Along with a Newspaper

A NEWSPAPER IS ONE of the accompaniments of daily living, to be taken no less for granted by its readers than sunrise or sunset. It is comfortably there, with its news and editorials, its features and its advertising. Yet this familiar friend has a way of becoming a daunting stranger when it must be approached for one reason or another by you the public.

That's too bad. It is a condition that can lead to misunderstanding, hurt feelings, and occasionally anger. Certainly part of the blame must go to the newspaper. The men and women who work on it, saddled as they are with the task of what someone has described as producing a daily miracle, are much too busy to explain themselves or their medium.

As a rover scout detached from the day-to-day scramble of getting out a paper, I'm under no such handicap. So today, let me fill you in on a few of the things you should know about your newspaper.

First for the basics:

Four main departments contribute to the making of a paper. These are the mechanical department, in which I lump a number of highly-complex skills, the circulation which looks to distribution, the advertising department which conveys commercial messages for a price, and the news.

A cardinal rule of every well-regulated newspaper is that advertising must never masquerade as news. The news columns are guarded jealously against commercial intrusion. They are not for sale.

Once in a while, this leads to heart-burning on the part of some advertiser who feels that his purchase of advertising space should confer special privilege in the presentation or even the suppression of a news item.

But where the news is concerned, no special privilege can be permitted to exist. So firmly held is this tenet by newspapermen that one publisher of the Times who was nabbed on a speeding charge insisted that the fact, and his name, appear in the court news.

Sooner or later, the time will arrive when you figure in some newsworthy occasion. You will then be approached, either by telephone or in person by a reporter who will ask questions and note down at least some of your answers. When it comes to dealing with reporters many people are miserably inept.

They talk too much, or not enough. They are repetitive, woefully vague, and anything but accurate in their statements.

Lacking the gift of second sight, the reporter must accept your words as gospel. As you tell it, so will it appear in print. Don't be panicked or flustered by the fact that someone is taking down what you say. Think before you speak . . . and get it right.

The tossed-off utterance has a startling and dismaying trick of acquiring new dimensions when it is translated into cold print. In my experience, the pained bleat, "I was misquoted!" rarely indicates that the reporter has erred. Far more commonly, it leads to the suspicion that the subject has simply let his mouth run away with him . . . to his later regret.

Another point to remember in any dealings with the press is that your daily newspaper is constantly and desperately short of space. It must reduce the city's and the world's news to a few pages. The job can only be brought off by compression of the most ruthless sort.

You have, we will suppose, labored long and hard over a speech. A reporter turns up at the meeting, and next day his account is in the paper. Your fine flourishes, your detailed explanations, have been shorn away. Only the bare bones of your presentation makes it into print.

Compression — the process by which you squeeze a big, fluffy snowball into a hard, compact one — has got in its licks.

But if you have a club announcement or a notice of a meeting to submit to your newspaper, never let a pardonable zeal for compression lure you into omitting necessary information. If you're a secretary with notices to send in on a regular basis, make yourself a check-list. Where is the meeting to be held? At precisely what time? On what date? Who will be the speaker? Have you spelled his name correctly, and what are his initials.?

Finally, keep in mind that a newspaper is the better for having strong opinions, which are kept carefully segregated from the news. You will find what a newspaper believes and holds by in its editorials, on a page which also carries opinion pieces of various sorts, and probably a cartoon.

For a newspaper, if it is to do its job properly, must be more than a purveyor of news. It must be prepared to speak its mind even though to do so may place it in jeopardy. A sharp-eyed press is your watchdog . . . and where would you be without it?

Share the Profits—IWA

B.C. loggers and millworkers will go for a share-the-wealth pay increase of 14 to 20 per cent this spring, officials of the International Woodworkers of America said today.

They point to profit increases of as much as 100 per cent over the previous year. Meanwhile, the companies say they need this extra money to reinvest in the industry during 1979.

Wages will be the big issue and the demand will be in double digits.

And they almost certainly will demand the agreement be for one year only.

"We are just completing a two-year contract and we won't make that mistake again," said Lewis, who is spokesman for 1,900 Victoria-area woodworkers.

"Our wages went up 13 per cent (in the two years) but the cost of living was up 18 or 19 per cent. We fell behind by that six per cent."

His approach: recapture the six per cent from the past two years, plus nine per cent based on the expected cost of living increase in the coming year.

But added to that, he said, should be a share-the-wealth bonus of four or five per cent because companies are doing so well.

"Profits of the companies are up about 100 per cent. Our members are entitled to a share of those profits.

"Look at it this way. If we were getting paid in American dollars we would get an increase of at least 15 per cent more. The companies are getting their revenues in American dollars and we should get the equivalent amount in extra Canadian dollars."

Lewis said he believes Calvert Knudsen, president of MacMillan Bloedel, gets his salary in U.S. funds.

"In Victoria we sent a questionnaire to our members and the response was heavily in favor of a large pay increase this year. Our members are united on this issue. We will try to convince Mr. Thompson his local is being conservative

Arsonist Hits Belmont

Fire investigators found evidence of arson after a $100,000 fire at Belmont High School, 3067 Jacklin, early Sunday.

Colwood RCMP said a can thought to have contained an inflammable substance was found at the scene. It is is being analysed in a Vancouver laboratory.

A Langford fire department spokesman said the provincial fire marshal is investigating.

Internal alarm systems were ringing but appeared not to have been heard by nearby residents.

More sophisticated alarms were in the process of being installed when the fire occurred.

Cameron's work on behavior modification was funded in part by a grant from the Society for the Investigation of Human Ecology, which Marks describes as a CIA front.

Details of her treatment were confirmed by Orlikow, who was a Winnipeg city alderman when his wife began receiving the drug injections. She went to the Montreal institute as a voluntary patient in late 1956.

Cameron administered the injections personally. She then was left alone in a room with a tape recording of her last session with the psychiatrist and ordered to make notes on the recording and her feelings.

Mrs. Orlikow hated the treatment, which sometimes was administered three or four times a week, the author says. She finally insisted that it be stopped.

In his book, which exposes alleged secret CIA experiments in mind control, Marks says Cameron began receiving funds from the CIA through the human ecology society in 1957.

Marks says Cameron may not have known that the CIA was the ultimate source of the money, about $19,000 a year.

Orlikow disagrees.

"It's very unlikely he didn't know," the NDP legislator said in a telephone interview from Winnipeg. "Certainly, in retrospect, it seems that my wife was part of a series of experiments."

Marks says that in any event, the CIA officials "knew exactly what they were paying for."

The CIA at the time was worried that the Chinese and

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Continued gains in financial and building shares sent the Toronto stock market moderately higher Monday in active mid-afternoon trading.

Among industrials, Selkirk Holdings A climbed 2¼ to $18 on the sale of 1,200 shares, Hudson's Bay Co. ¾ to $22, Cara Operations ¾ to $9⅞, Cooper Canada Ltd. ¾ to $8¾ and Vulcan Industrial Packaging ⅝ to $10.

Bank of British Columbia dropped 1¾ to $35 on 577 shares, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas 1¾ to $59¼, Dome Petroleum ¾ to $100½, Seagram Co. ⅝ to $35⅜ and Union Oil of Canada ½ to $23⅛.

United Siscoe Mines advanced 1 to $9¾, Teck Corp. A ¼ to $12¼ and Sherritt Gordon Mines A ⅛ to $10¼. Ego Resources was down 30 cents to $4.50 and Kerr Addison Mines A ¼ to $11¾.

Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum rose ⅜ to $24⅞, Trans-Canada Resources 13 cents to $2.04 and Bonanza Oil and Gas ⅛ to $5⅝. Numac Oil and Gas slipped ½ to $28 and Total Petroleum North America ⅜ to $18¾.

New York

The market had risen steadily in recent days amid hopes that interest rates had reached or passed their high point. But a number of analysts have questioned whether that speculation might not be premature.

Several New York banks cut their broker loan rates Monday to 11 from 11½ per cent. Investors still seemed skeptical, however, that that indicated the start of a lasting downtrend.

United Technologies rose ¼ to $39⅛. The company reported higher fourth-quarter earnings and raised its dividend.

U.S. Industries, which listed higher 1978 earnings, gained ⅜ to $8¼.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) - All major indices advanced as prices posted major gains in moderate afternoon trading at the Montreal Stock Exchange. The 85-stock composite index climbed 0.55 to 237.22.

Volume at 2 p.m. EST was 427,367 shares, compared to the 465,617 shares traded up to the same time Friday.

London

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 463.3, off 1.7.

Leading industrials were mixed, while mining and gold issues advanced.

Canadian stocks were narrowly higher.

THICK INK is the latest development of the Paper Mate research labs in Boston. Bob Davidson demonstrates the elasticity of the ink, one million times thicker than water. The company will have a new pen using the ink on the market by the begining of April, and claims the ink is as erasable as pencil lead.

Bankruptcies Up By 30 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — A 30-per-cent increase in bankruptcies during the first 11 months of 1978, compared with the corresponding period in 1977, has been reported by the consumer affairs department.

Almost 20,000 bankrutcies had occurred by the end of November.

The end-of November total of 19,899 bankruptcies compares with 15,346 bankruptices during the first 11 months of 1977 and 11,986 for the same period in 1976.

The department's latest monthly bulletin shows 1,935 bankutpcies in November, 1,517 of which were consumer bankruptcies. The remaining 418 were business bankruptcies.

Ontario reported the largest incidence of bankruptcy for the 11-month study period — 43 per cent of the total. Quebec accounted for 32 per cent, British Columbia reported nine per cent, Alberta six per cent and the remaining 10 per cent was divided among the other provinces.

—Manufacturing industries: $55.1 million.

—Construction: $119.6 million.

—Transportation, communication and utilities: $13.2 million.

—Wholesale and retail trade: $154.1 million.

SPLIT PEA SOUP

Rinse 1 lb. dry green split peas. In soup kettle or Dutch oven, mix peas, 1 meaty ham bone, 1 medium chopped onion, 1 tsp. instant chicken bouillon granules, ¼ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper and 8 cups water. Bring mixture to boiling. Reduce heat; cover and simmer for approximately 1½ hours, stirring frequently. Remove ham bone; cut off meat and chop. Return ham to soup; add 1 cup peeled and sliced carrot and 1 cup diced celery. Simmer for approximately 30 minutes longer or until vegetables are tender. Cook 4 slices bacon in skillet until crisp; drain and crumble. Stir bacon, ½ cup cream and 2 tbsp. butter or margarine into soup. Heat through but do not boil. Makes 8 servings.
